CONFEREES PLACE FORMAL APPROVAL ON PAY-HOUR BILL

Final Draft Completed, Committee Members Predict Plan Will Go to F. D. R. by Midweek.

HOUSE TO TAKE UP MEASURE TUESDAY

Flexible Wage Provisions Urged by Southerners Included in Compromise.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—A joint congressional committee put its formal approval today on a compromise wage-hour bill. Conferees unanimously predicted it would be adopted by congress and sent to the President for signature by midweek. The final draft was completed at a Sunday session. The conferees will report it formally to the house tomorrow where it must lay over one day under the rules. It will be taken up there on Tuesday and Chairman Mary T. Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, of the house labor committee, predicted its prompt adoption. Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, said he believed the senate also would act on it Tuesday.

Court Test Almost Certain. The compromise, described by Senator Thomas as "the greatest development in our federal system since the passage of the social security legislation," is almost sure to face a court test when it is put into operation. Under the bill, the President may appoint the wage-hour administrator immediately after he signs the law and the administrator in turn can set up the machinery to fix minimum wages and maximum hours in interstate industries.

The compromise bill contains flexible wage differentials sought by southern senators, although they are wrapped about with qualifications under which exemptions to wage and hour orders would be granted. Under the bill formerly approved by the committee, a universal minimum wage of 25 cents an hour will go into effect in industry 120 days after enactment. One year later a 30-cent minimum will become effective.

Boards to Fix Minimum. After the 30-cent wage minimum had been reached, boards appointed by the administrator would fix the minima within each industry. It would do this by classifying the industry as to the size of its units, recommending the highest minimum wage that each classification could pay without seriously curtailing the opportunities for employment.

Representative Bertrand Snell, the minority leader, said today the closing days of congress had been marked by the most "brazen, shameless playing of politics" he had witnessed in 24 years in the house.

"The tactics of Tammany Hall and Boss Tweed have now been brought inside the doors of the United States capitol," Snell declared in a statement. "Not even the spoilsman of Andrew Jackson's day were bolder than have been the New Dealers."

Major Marks 45th Birthday Behind Bars

Brooke Gladly Celebrates With Tall, Cool Cup—of Water.

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 12.—Major John R. Brooke Jr. charged with the murder of his wife, marked his 45th birthday today with dismal prison routine, in sharp contrast to his life a week ago. The anniversary passed as Major Brooke, who gave up the study of mining engineering to become an infantry officer, outstanding as a commander of troops in the field, remained in a sultry cell block in Muscogee county jail here.

Not Spick and Span. Instead of spick and span military uniform, the stockily built veteran officer wore only his underwear. He awoke early, to breakfast on the slim prison fare of grits, fried meat, biscuit and coffee. He ate glumly. His only visitors were T. Hicks Fort, Columbus criminal lawyer, who has been retained as the major's counsel, and a newspaperman.

Fort said he was seeking to arrange more comfortable quarters for his client and special dispensation for him to be allowed daily shaves, instead of the regulation Wednesday and Saturday routine of the jail. Major Brooke, whose wife was found dead in their attractive quarters at Fort Benning at noon last Wednesday, called for ice water, and lined up, cup in hand, to receive his allotment from a prison attendant.

Fliers Find Bodies Of Two Scientists

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, June 12.—(AP)—British royal air force planes today discovered the bodies of Dr. Charles F. M. Swynnerton and B. D. Burt, authorities on sleeping sickness, 50 miles from Singida, Tanganyika. The scientists were killed when the plane in which they were flying from Singida to Dodoma and Dar-es-Salaam crashed June 8. The pilot, W. M. Bawden, also was killed.

Roosevelt and Gillette Shed Coats At Chummy Meal in White House

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Senator Guy Gillette sat down in their shirt sleeves to a chummy luncheon today and talked of a united Democratic party in Iowa. The presidential gesture of friendliness to the Iowan, renowned despite opposition of some high administration advisers, was carried out in the informality of Mrs. Roosevelt's second-floor study. Gillette reported that only the two men were present and that both shed their coats to the day's 95-degree temperature before eating a five-course luncheon. Cold roast beef was the meal's main dish, but Gillette said the talk covered many subjects.

CZECH GERMAN VOTE 90 PER CENT FOR NAZI FORCES

Only One Sudeten Riot Mars Local Elections; 50 Henleinists Attack Police, 14 Are Injured.

PRAHA POLISHES MINORITIES LAW

Hitler's Agent Brands Neighbor State Menace to Europe's Peace.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, June 12.—(AP)—Fourteen persons were injured tonight in a municipal election disorder as unofficial returns gave the Czechoslovak government and Nazi-supported Sudeten German party each strong gains in the regions where their opposing nationalities predominate.

Sudeten supporters of Konrad Henlein unofficially polled 90 per cent of the total vote in German districts. In Czech regions pro-government parties gained majorities similar to those of the two previous Sundays of balloting which were interpreted as a vote of confidence in Premier Milan Hodza's government.

The one outbreak was at Maerisch-Schönberg. Shouting "police have been clubbing our women," about 50 Henleinists fought it out with police but finally were dispersed. The Sudeten party tabulation of returns showed a total of 824,282 German votes. Of this total Sudeten candidates received 749,820 votes.

As voters crowded the polling places, the highest juridical authorities of the republic devoted the day to an intensive study of the Sudeten German demands for autonomy and other concessions and of the possibility of satisfying at least some of them within the framework of the constitution. Tomorrow, with the elections out of the way, the government hopes to complete its formulation of proposals for a new nationalities statute.

Formulated proposals are scheduled to be handed to a representative of Henlein on Tuesday.

HESS ATTACKS CZECHOSLOVAKIA

STETTIN, Germany, June 12.—(AP)—Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's general representative, accused Czechoslovakia today of being a menace to the peace of Europe. He asserted the little republic was in a condition "practically akin to a state of war."

FLANDIN SAYS FRANCE IS READY TO MOBILIZE

PARIS, June 12.—(AP)—Former Premier Pierre Flandin declared today the Daladier government was prepared to order mobilization to aid Czechoslovakia if she were invaded by Germany. He urged his followers to oppose war unless France herself were attacked.

Heir Pursues Wife of Week In Trans-Continental Flight

'Jojo,' the Beautiful Model, Leaves Radio Executive To Visit Sick Aunt Same Time as His Chief Rival for Her Affections Is Reported Missing.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The will-o'-the-wisp romance of J. Scott Glenn, heir to Oklahoma oil millions, took a new turn tonight with reports he was en route to the Pacific coast in his private plane, searching for his bride who disappeared a week after their marriage. Mrs. Glenn, who informed her husband that she was going "to visit a sick aunt," has been "missing" for six days.

BODIES OF 2 MEN TAKEN FROM RIVER

2 Others Feared Drowned in Chattahoochee Return Home During Hunt

Bodies of two men who drowned while fishing in the Chattahoochee river were recovered yesterday after a 20-hour search in which scores of persons participated. Meanwhile, two missing youths believed to have drowned while swimming returned home after a mosquito-harassed night on the river bank in which they slept little and scratched much.

The recovered bodies were those of Jim Lowry, 40, and Wesley Conn, 35, textile workers, both of Riverside. Their borrowed bateau capsized late Saturday afternoon in rough, high water of the river about a half mile north of the Southern railway trestle, near Riverside.

Hunt for Bodies. The hunt for the bodies, in which searchers used trawls, brought hundreds of persons to the river. Enterprising vendors sold ice cream and soft drinks in quantities. Conn's body was taken from the river at about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Lowry's was recovered near the same spot a few hours later, about 200 feet downstream from where the bateau capsized, and 30 feet from the bank.

Harrowing Experience. The missing youths were James Ginn, 17, of 921 Lee street, and Eugene (Buddy) Parrott, 15, of 585 Ocmulgee street. They went swimming Saturday morning, and were thought drowned when their clothes and locked bicycles were found on the bank a few hundred feet from where the bateau overturned.

The boys recounted a harrowing experience, and expressed surprise their failure to return home had caused alarm and search. Their fathers were among spectators watching searchers. Ginn, an apprentice machinist, said a swift current caught him. Continued in Page 8, Column 2.

LOYALISTS' LINES CRUMBLE BEFORE CASTELLON DRIVE

Five Columns of Insurgents, 20,000 Strong, Converge on Rich Port City Under Franco's Guns.

FATE OF VALENCIA IS UP TO MIAJA

Scores of Small Towns and Villages Fall as Rebels Sweep Toward Sea.

HENDAYE, France. (At the Spanish Frontier.) June 12.—(AP)—Five columns of Spanish Insurgents, 20,000 strong, converged today on rich Castellon de La Plana which finally lay under Generalissimo Franco's field guns after a bitter, seven-week campaign.

General Jose Miaja's coastal defense line, which had blocked the insurgent drive to the south since Franco drove a salient to the Mediterranean in mid-April, crumbled yesterday with a government retreat from Albocacer.

Albocacer, 27 miles north of Castellon de La Plana, had been weakened as a defense bulwark by insurgent penetration deeper inland and closer to the port city from the northwest. This had threatened isolation of Albocacer.

By dawn insurgent troops were streaming along the network of inland roads and two main coastal highways for a concerted assault on Castellon de La Plana, principal barrier to conquest of Valencia, 40 miles to the south-southwest.

(A dispatch from insurgent Zaragoza said the most advanced unit of the coastal army was within two and one-half miles of Castellon de La Plana and capitulation of the city was believed imminent.)

(Castellon de La Plana, a modern port in the center of the eastern Spanish coast, had a pre-war population of about 36,000.) Scores of lesser towns, villages and hamlets fell to the converging sweep of the Insurgents. The full control of civil and military affairs in all government territory, save Catalonia, was handed over to the bald, heavy-jowled Miaja after the Insurgents lopped off Catalonia in their march to the sea.

Faces Heavy Task. Miaja, known as the "savior of Madrid," now has the task of saving Valencia, if not Castellon de La Plana.

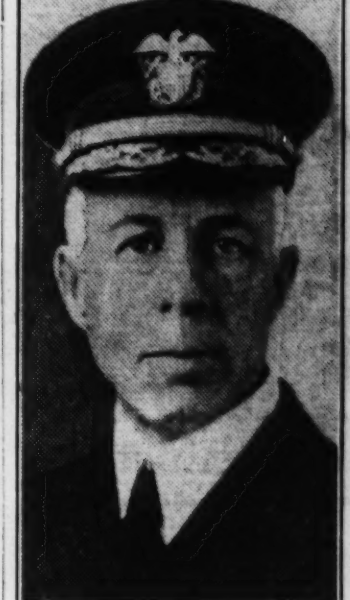

A column of Italian Legionnaires, which had failed in a dozen attempts to crack the Albocacer line, started forward along the easternmost of twin coastal highways on the heels of Miaja's retreating "militians."

The Italians crossed the Seguer river south of Alcala de Chisvert and occupied Torreblanca and Torrenostro, about 20 miles from Castellon de La Plana, before pushing on south toward Orpesa, a coastal town about 11 miles northeast of the principal objective.

'Failure Is Essential To Success' Inventor Kettering Declares Here

"The way to tackle a problem is to make the problem boss," Charles F. Kettering, president and general manager of General Motors Research Corporation, said here yesterday in an interview. Kettering, a world-famous inventor, arrived yesterday morning from Dayton, Ohio, and will be principal speaker at the 48th commencement exercises of Georgia Tech at the Fox theater at 9:30 o'clock this morning. "Pick good problems, ones that come within the realm of solution. It is difficult to do new things. Most persons quit too soon. They let the first few failures discourage them. Failure is essential to solving any problem."

Plane Found Three Months After Crash

Youth Discovers Wreckage Containing Nine Bodies in Yosemite Park.

MARIPOSA, Cal., June 12.—(UP)—Sheriff J. J. Castagnetto, of Mariposa county, tonight announced that the wreckage of a T. W. A. air liner which vanished with nine persons aboard the night of March 2 had been found in Yosemite National park.

H. O. Collier, a Fresno youth, discovered the wreckage about 15 miles north of Wawona in the southern end of the national park. The wrecked plane lay on Buena Vista peak, above Buena Vista gap. Collier had been searching for the plane for several days. He came across the wreckage on the south side of the peak at the 6,000-foot level.

Wreckage Scattered. The youth reported the find to a forest ranger who in turn told Chief Ranger Townsley at the national park headquarters in Yosemite valley. In the meantime T. W. A. headquarters in San Francisco were informed. The plane apparently had struck at terrific force. The wreckage was scattered over a wide area. The main body of the wrecked liner was half-buried in snow.

Collier made no attempt to determine the condition of the bodies in the plane. Those aboard the liner when it disappeared the night of March 1 on a flight from San Francisco to Los Angeles were J. Tracy Dirlam, 22, and his sister, Mary Lou Dirlam, 18, Stanford students; Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Waltz, San Francisco; Hervey M. Slisbury, 31, a T. W. A. pilot riding as a passenger.

Asiatic Fleet Commander Asserts That 'Our Vessels Will Go Wherever Citizens Are in Danger.'

DECLINES TO PAINT SHIPS RED COLOR

Nipponese Are Warned of Responsibility of Damage to U. S. Property.

SHANGHAI, June 12.—(UP)—Admiral Harry E. Yarnell tonight rejected a Japanese request that American and other foreign shipping and naval vessels evacuate a 200-mile stretch of the Yangtze river above Wuhu. He informed Japanese naval commanders that American warships would go "wherever Americans are in danger."

The commander of the United States Asiatic fleet made his position known through the American consulate general in a direct reply to the suggestion of Japanese naval officials that all foreign vessels leave the river area between Wuhu and Kluiking.

Sharp Message. In a sharply worded message, Yarnell set forth three "principles" of American naval operation in Asiatic waters:

1. The United States navy will retain complete freedom of movement on the Yangtze, and will proceed to any place where Americans are in danger.
2. The American command will not change the color of its warships, which are painted white, to conform to any color scheme suggested by the Japanese.
3. The United States does not regard the warning of Japanese naval officials relative to the Yangtze as relieving the Japanese "in the slightest degree" of responsibility for damage or injury to United States warships.

Yarnell reinforced his refusal to accept the Japanese request by planning a personal inspection of American fighting ships now stationed up the Yangtze.

More Specific. He made his attitude even more specific by "informing" the Japanese of his intention of making the trip up the Yangtze, instead of "requesting" permission, as the Japanese command previously suggested.

The announcement concerning the color of the American warships stationed on the Yangtze was in response to a Japanese request that American gunboats and other war vessels be painted red, instead of white, so they would be more easily distinguished by Japanese aviators.

Yarnell's reply said: "United States naval vessels throughout the Yangtze are a painted white with large American flags painted upon the awnings, and for this reason the name."

KIDNAPER'S WIFE, TOLD HE IS KILLER, STAYS FROM JAIL

Prosecution Prepared to Present Evidence to Grand Jury Today.

MIAMI, Fla., June 12.—(AP)—State's Attorney George A. Worley assembled evidence today to present to a special grand jury the story of the kidnapping and death of James Bailey Cash Jr., which Franklin P. McCall has confessed.

Joseph Hilliard, father-in-law of McCall, said his daughter, prosecuted after her husband's arrest, had finally been told of his full confession and was bearing up well. She made no effort to go to McCall's side.

Worley said he would ask the jury when it convenes tomorrow to indict the 21-year-old McCall on both kidnapping and murder charges. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, remained to appear as a witness, if needed.

Hoover said his agents also were available. McCall, still maintaining that "Skeegle's" death was accidental and not a part of his plans, was fingerprinted and photographed.

Life Begins at 67 For Chicago Senior

CHICAGO, June 12.—(AP)—John Czachowski says he believes that life begins at 67—at least for him.

"Our John" as he is called by his 'teen-age classmates is going to be graduated by the Medill High school next Thursday.

John said he made $30,000 at bricklaying, and thought he had plenty until the stock crash of 1929 "nearly wiped me out."

"Life," he said, "is beginning at 67. I want to make money but I also want to have a broader view."

"Our John" described by Principal Walter Shea as the "hardest worker" in the school, finished a four-year course in three and a half years.

CLOUDY, LITTLE SHIFT IN MERCURY FORECAST
Partly cloudy and not much change in temperature is the weather prospect for Atlanta today, according to the forecast issued last night at the Candler airport weather office.

The mercury ranged yesterday between 88 and 90 degrees. Temperatures today are due to climb from 88 to 89 degrees. Nothing unusual on the nation's weather map was reported.

What a Blow! The Colonel Himself Is Nominated in Race for Oompah

All His Unselfish Untiring Work for Comediana Has Been Taken Lightly—But, on Your Guard, Suh, a Blast Is Ever Ready To Defend His Honor.

Editors Note: You'll never guess what's happened now! Of all persons, that steady fellow, that solid statesman, that great man of genius and verbiage, Colonel Whoopen Blast himself, has gone and got touchy. The great correspondent of the race for Oompah of Constitution comic characters is definitely sore. We knew Kayo Mullins was unreliable and we have fully expected some of the prima donnas of the comic world to sound off. But the Colonel takes us by surprise. But here it is. You can see for yourselves.

By COLONEL WHOOPEN BLAST,
Political Correspondent Extraordinaire.

Friends, bear with me whilst I bare all. It seems that the great work I am doing here in Comediana, interpreting the course of statesmanship whilst the candidates vie for a post of distinction, is not taken seriously. It hurts, friends, it hurts deeply. I, who personally grappled with Santa Anna at the Alamo and wear to this good day his wooden leg as a watch charm—

I, who negotiated the Louisiana Purchase and contented myself with a paltry 70 per cent commission—

I, who am noted in 117 Militia Districts for hunting with the hares and running with the hounds, or words to that effect—I, the terror of a thousand Election Days, have been held up to scorn, ridicule and contumely.

Sad to relate, friends, I have been nominated as a comic character in the race for Oompah.

It is a blow, and let me tell you freely that a blow to a Blast is considerable of a blow. There can be but one reaction to such a suggestion. The man Jones who writes in The Constitution the column entitled "Silhouettes" (hitherto a quite respectable and interesting column) must fight for that unthinkable nomination in Sunday.

Two days. Crossed quills and apple jack for two, at midnight—that's the story. Thus, and only thus, can honor be maintained. Let me add that a Blast is ever ready to maintain honor, with a little apple jack on the side.

There will be other duels on that fateful midnight. Brother Andrew Gump, breathing fire and breath-killer, will be there to meet one of his traducers on the field of honor. This is direct from the feed box. We had it no later than yesterday in a telegram from New York, whither Brother Gump flew to make a deal with the Hudson Dusters for support in his race for Oompah on Election Day, July 4. Read the fiery words and judge if it is not so.

"A VOTE FOR GUMP IS LIKE A LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS STOP FEEL SO GOOD WILL RAISE THE ANTE TO A FIFTEEN-CENT NICKEL STOP TELL THAT TALBOT HE WILL HAVE TO ANSWER TO ME PERSONALLY I HOPE STOP SIGNED GUMP STOP ONLY YOU CAN'T STOP GUMP FOR OOMPAH."

The man Talbot, the studious steam-presser and shears-wielder of Cone street, hotted up the good Gump, despite all Dick Tracy, Tarzan and Orphan Annie could do, by writing to the Editor of The Constitution about Andrew's 10-cent nickel. It was a letter of exceeding guile, for it condemned by inference while seeming to praise from the heart. We quote from the epistolary addit's latest outburst:

"I was for Huey Long until I read Doctor Townsend. I was for Doctor Townsend until I read Doctor Gump's dissertation on his fabulous 10-cent nickel. Now where am I? Oh yes, I remember, right here on Cone street."

"I have seen the rise and fall of the great, and found all permanence in the simple things great minds overlook. The complexity of economics has finally been brought to the sphere of this permanence by the proposed 10-cent nickel. Now all is solved. I shall vote for Gump if he is still loose on Election Day."

Nor was that all. Editor Tom Arnold, of Canton, did next to nothing to bring peace to the situation by sending a courier in an ox-cart with a terse missive which read:

"Dick Tracy's triple-parking scheme, is nothing short of grand larceny. It is but an elaboration of the famed Arnold plan, hailed by a hundred Constitutional Conventions, to rope off all the streets and fill them with rocking chairs so a man can get a little rest."

Tracy heard of this with a grim look. He thought quietly for a time, as is his way. Then he seemed to reach a decision. When he spoke there was no doubt he'd reached quite a decision.

"Okay, if that Tom Arnold wants it he can have it," Dick said, firmly. "Since the Colonel and Jones are going to it on the field of honor, and Gump and Talbot are planning to battle to the death, we might as well make it a three-act bill. I will dispatch my seconds to Canton at once with a challenge to Arnold, the viper."

At this point, June Arden, who knows everything, broke in. "But Tom's not in Canton right now. He's visiting here in Atlanta." Tracy cogitated, then spoke.

"Nevertheless," he pronounced, "the seconds will bear the challenge—to Canton."

How will it all end? Can nothing be done to avert this threatening violence? Follow the progress of the Oompah race in The Constitution daily and you will know all just about as soon as we do.

LONDON, June 12.—(AP)—The Duchess of Norfolk, at 22 the youngest duchess in England, gave birth to a daughter today in a London hospital. The Duke of Norfolk is the premier duke and Earl Marshal of England.

The Duke, who was manager of King George VI's coronation, and the Duchess, the former Lavinia Strutt, were married January 27, 1937.

EDGAR V. CARTER RITES CONDUCTED
Prominent Attorney Interred at West View.

Funeral services for Edgar V. Carter, 81, a practicing attorney in Atlanta for 56 years, who died Friday night at his home, were held yesterday afternoon at the residence, conducted by the Rev. Irbey Henderson and Dr. Edward G. Mackay. Burial was in West View cemetery.

Mr. Carter, who lived at 868 Springdale road, N. E., was the senior partner of the law firm of Carter, Stewart & Johnson at the time of his death. He came here in 1882 and was widely known as a specialist in real estate matters.

An active member of the Methodist church, he had been chairman of the board of stewards of the Park Street Methodist church for more than 20 years and was one of the organizers and served as first vice president of the Methodist Stewards' Association of Atlanta.

Besides being active in legal circles, he served several terms as city councilman and as county commissioner.

CANADIAN TO TALK BEFORE FLORISTS
One-Day Convention Will Be Held Here Today.

Ernest S. Simmons, of Toronto, Canada, will arrive in Atlanta by plane tonight and speak at 8 o'clock before members of Unit C-D, sixth region, of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, which will hold a one-day convention at the Atlanta Woman's Club today.

The convention will open at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Woman's Club auditorium. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

A motorcade will leave the Woman's Club at 6 o'clock this evening to meet Mr. Simmons, who is scheduled to arrive at 7 o'clock. Mayor Hartsfield is expected to accompany the motorcade.

Mr. Simmons will speak at a banquet given in his honor. He will be introduced by Regional Director W. E. Joy.

SHIP WILL SEEK SUNKEN TREASURE

Expedition Will Attempt to Recover $1,250,000 Off Virginia Capes.

NORFOLK, Va., June 12.—(AP)—Jewels and silver, estimated at more than $1,250,000, lured a new salvaging expedition today toward the 27-year-old grave of the Ward Line steamer Merida, 65 miles off the Virginia Capes.

The Italian salvage steamer Falco, which successfully recovered the sunken treasure of the British vessel Egypt several years ago, will take aboard supplies here this week for the attempt to recover whatever valuables there may be in the hulk of the Merida, which lies in some 250 feet of water.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended on four previous efforts to reach the treasure, which long-repeated reports, all unconfirmed, say includes the crown jewels of former Emperor Maximilian, of Mexico.

The Merida plunged to the bottom within 20 minutes after a collision with the Admiral Farragut May 11, 1911.

MINERS CALL OFF RALLY AT HARLAN

Action Taken To Aid 'Pro-cesses of Justice.'

HARLAN, Ky., June 12.—(UP)—Two thousand union miners assembled on the edge of the Clover Fork Coal Company property for a rally today and then called off the meeting so as not to interfere with the orderly process of justice at London where the Harlan coal conspiracy case is being tried.

The miners assembled in the face of a protest by attorneys for 19 coal corporations and 44 individuals on trial in London who contended it would "infringe opinion" against their clients and hamper preparation of the case. The Clover Fork Coal Company, one of the defendant corporations.

HAGUE-CIO FIGHT TO RESUME TODAY

"Reds" Resist Effort of Jersey City To Subpoena Their Records.

NEWARK, N. J., June 12.—(AP)—The federal court civil rights battle between Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and those he calls "reds" and "undesirables" will be resumed tomorrow when Judge William Clark hears arguments on the validity of a number of subpoenas.

Counsel for the CIO, American Civil Liberties Union and co-plaintiffs seeking an injunction restraining Mayor Frank Hague and fellow officials from interfering with their activities have said they would fight against complying with several subpoenas issued by Jersey City counsel.

Among them were those issued to Dr. Harry F. Ward, ACLU chairman; Roger N. Baldwin, its director; William J. Carney, state CIO director; Morris L. Ernst, one of plaintiffs' counsel, and Arthur Garfield Hays, New York lawyer.

Ernst said he planned a special fight against compliance with a subpoena calling for production of all records of the CIO and affiliates since it started activities in New Jersey, including names of officers and members and financial accounts.

NAVY, ARMY PLAN HUGE FLYING BOATS

Ships of 50 and 75 Tons Are Designed.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—The navy's disclosure of preparations to build a long-range patrol flying boat of possibly 50 tons hinted today at a friendly competition with the army in efforts to get better airplanes.

On the drafting boards of army air corps designers, military circles have heard—without official confirmation—are plans for a bomber of some 75 tons. This is more than twice the size of the army's experimental "super flying fortress."

Either of these ships would be larger than any military plane now in the air. Great Britain has a 40-ton flying boat and Soviet Russia is reported to be testing bombers of huge size, with six engines.

FRANCE AND TURKEY WILL OPEN PARLEY FOR MUTUAL PACT

Agreement Expected To Guard Status Quo in Eastern Mediterranean.

PARIS, June 12.—(UP)—Turkey, France and Syria probably will negotiate a mutual assistance pact which in effect would guarantee the status quo in the eastern Mediterranean, it was reported tonight.

A Turkish mission arrived in Alexandria, Syria, late today for official negotiations opening tomorrow. Reliable reports said the preliminary groundwork, including a satisfactory settlement of the Alexandretta Sanjak (province) dispute already has been completed through diplomatic channels.

It was understood that the French foreign office has assured Turkey in recent negotiations that the Turks in the Sanjak (province) would be granted independent administrative and cultural status.

(In recent weeks, clashes have occurred between Turks and Arabs in the Alexandretta region over the plebiscite on autonomy which is to be held June 10. France placed the region under a "state of siege" on June 3 and suspended registration for the plebiscite.)

In guaranteeing the integrity of Syria, the Franco-Turkish military conventions would practically protect the territorial status quo of the eastern Mediterranean.

This military accord would supplement the military provisions contained in the Franco-Syrian and Franco-Lebanon independence treaties in which France received air bases, the right to use Syrian ports for her fleet and undertook to train native armies.

From the French viewpoint, a neutralized eastern Mediterranean zone would enable her to withdraw troops protecting the Mosul-Beirut oil pipeline in case of a widespread conflict, and still not leave the vital pipeline open to attack.

Unconfirmed reports are that Britain strongly encouraged

Morally Delinquent Dog Saved by Court

DETROIT, June 12.—(UP)—A three-year-old black and white terrier, whose fondness for loitering about the corner saloon had led folks to say he was going to the dogs, was saved from himself today by court order.

Complaining that her husband was contributing to the dog's moral delinquency by taking him to beer gardens, Mrs. Catherine Pohorsky asked Judge Homer Ferguson for custody of the terrier in a divorce settlement.

"The dog used to be so sweet-tempered," Mrs. Pohorsky explained, "but since he has been going to those awful beer gardens he snaps at everyone."

After Mrs. Pohorsky agreed to waive alimony for his support, she was granted custody of the dog.

France to settle the Sanjak question to Turkey's satisfaction in order to arrive at a general arrangement.

CHICAGO, June 12.—(AP)—Fred Snite Jr. has gone home, still encased in an "iron lung" in which he has been fighting infantile paralysis.

The 27-year-old "man in the iron lung," who has spent 26 months in respirators, yesterday was discharged from Billings Memorial hospital, where he had been under observation since returning recently from Miami, Fla.

A battery-equipped moving van took him to his residence in suburban River Forest.

Fred beamed cheerfully as he caught his first glimpse of his home since January 2, 1935. He was stricken in China while on a world tour.

'Y' GIRL RESERVES HOLD CONVENTION

More Than 125 Students Are Attending Meeting at Smyrna.

By YOLANDE GWIN,
Constitution Staff Writer.
SMYRNA, Ga., June 12.—Discussions of personal relations of friendship, family, social etiquette and courses in marriage education are highlights of the fifth Southern "Y" Girl Reserve Regional Conference now in session here at Camp Highland. It continues through June 16.

More than 125 senior high school girls are attending the conference as delegates from Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky, being club leaders in their respective Y. W. C. A. groups.

The personal relation discussions are being led by Mrs. P. M. Wynne, of Miami, Fla., said to be the only woman in the south who conducts a course in marriage preparation for senior high school students. She is a member of the faculty of the Miami High School.

In addition to Mrs. Wynne's forum, the Interest Groups are also being addressed by Miss Emily Woodward, of Vienna, who will discuss education for the consumer, and Mrs. Marian Garrett, of Knoxville, Tenn.

Miss Emma Twigg, of Augusta, is leading the discussions on Religion as applied to family life, while Miss Anne Jones, of Savannah, is conducting the series on International Affairs, which includes war prevention and peace plans. Dr. R. Wiley Scott's talks embrace everyday problems, including education, industry and attitudes of citizenship.

Adult leadership for young girls is under the direction of Miss Louise Goodloe, General "Y" secretary of Knoxville, and Miss Metta Mae Mitchell, of Atlanta. Creative art groups are being led by Miss Louise Simpson, of Athens; Mrs. Dorothy Mayer, of Miami, and Miss Kay Carpenter, of St. Petersburg.

The conference opened Thursday with Miss Anne Primrose, of Atlanta, as director, and also serving as leader of the Living Relations Council. Mrs. Julia McClain, of Miami, is a Clover Club executive.

Recreation Activities. Recreation activities during the week's conference are finding the girls swimming, playing tennis, badminton and other outdoor games. The camp, located a few miles from here, is in a beautiful wooded area which was once the old Earnest property.

During the summer months, Y. W. C. A. girls find the camp an ideal spot for either week-end or extended vacation visits. Revelle at 7 o'clock during this week's conference begins the day for the 125 girls, until taps, at 10 o'clock, the day is filled with study programs as well as pleasurable activities.

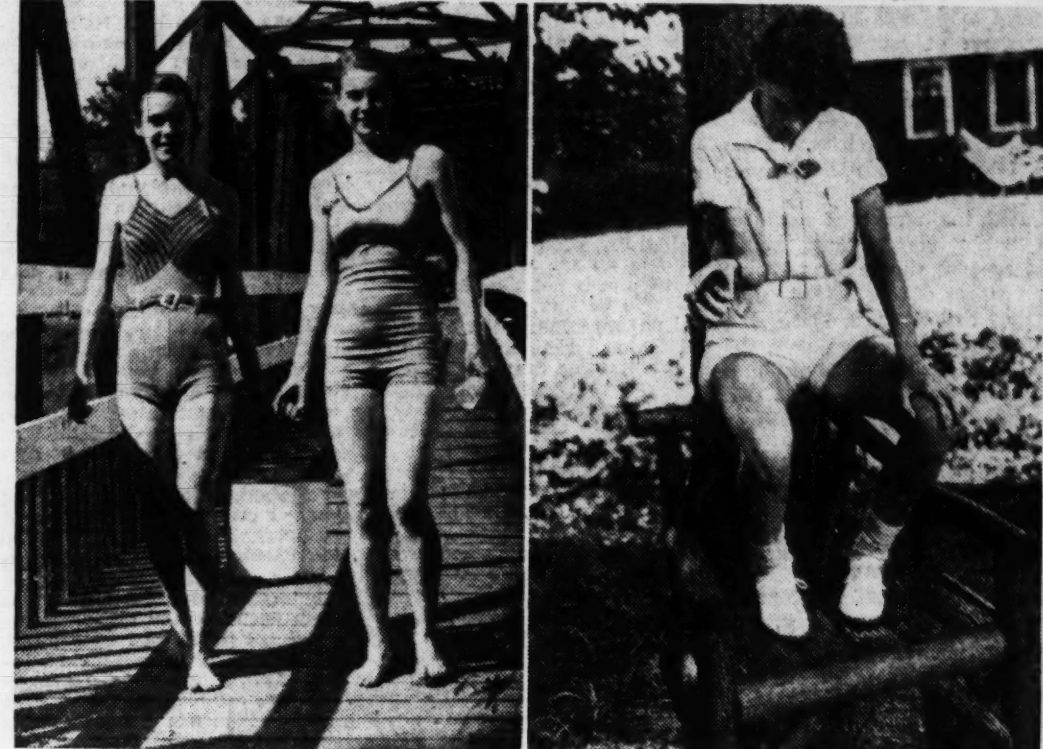

Miss E. Jacques Poole, of Clearwater, Fla., general secretary of the "Y" there, is acting as conference registrar and business manager. Miss Marie Stalker, of Atlanta, is in charge of the teachers' recreation and Miss Sara Lawrence, also of Atlanta, is chairman of food for the conference.

A tour of Atlanta and a visit to historic points will bring the conference to a close on next Thursday.

'Y' Girl Reserves Take Time Out for Sun Tanning

A feminine "bucket brigade" is called into action at Camp Highland. Two delegates from Knoxville, Marian Henshaw, left, and Frances Robinson, right, were "water boys" for their campmates.

Bathing beauties who really swim also make pretty pictures as evidenced by the trio of high school girls who emerged from the pool at Camp Highland to take a sun bath. They are Florence Price, of Birmingham; Doris Thompson, Atlanta, and Mary Pilkinton, of Nashville, leaders in their local Y. W. C. A.

U. S. WILL BATTLE FOR WHEAT PRICE

Government Looks to Export Markets.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP) Agricultural Department officials consider it "quite possible" that the administration will take the initiative in placing surplus American wheat in export markets rather than depend on regular trade channels to do so.

This possibility was considered, they said, at a White House conference yesterday at which President Roosevelt directed Secretary Wallace and State Department officials to survey the foreign market possibilities.

Faced with prospects of a record 1938 American crop and surplus, the administration intends, these officials said, to use every means to prevent a price collapse. On the basis of latest reports, experts foresee a possible surplus in this country of 1,220,000,000 bushels, with a surplus above normal domestic and export needs of 450,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels.

MRS. W. H. SPENCE DIES IN 63D YEAR

Funeral Today for Former
Clerk of Alpharetta Superior Court.

Mrs. Ada Eison Spence, 62, widow of William H. Spence, who was clerk of the superior court of old Milton county for 30 years, died in a private hospital here yesterday after a lengthy illness.

A native of Alpharetta, Mrs. Spence lived there all of her life. Mrs. Spence became clerk of the superior court in 1930. She was succeeded by her son, William E. Spence, who held the office until the county merged with Fulton county. He is now an attorney in Atlanta.

She was a member of the Alpharetta Methodist church and taught a Sunday school class there for many years. She was active in missionary society work, also.

Surviving, besides William E. Spence, are two other sons, John D. Dodd, advertising solicitor of The Constitution, and James E. Spence, of Alpharetta; one daughter, Miss Sibel Spence, teacher in the Roswell school; a sister, Mrs. J. G. Willis, of Alpharetta, and four brothers, V. E. Eison, of Alpharetta; V. V. Eison, of Roswell; Sim E. Eison, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Nolan Eison, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning in the Alpharetta Methodist church, by the Rev. Frank Moorehead. Burial will be in the Alpharetta cemetery, under the direction of Louie E. Jones.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 13, 1933.

SO THE DEPRESSION HANGS ON

What might be correctly termed a composite expression of American business opinion indicates a widespread feeling that the government, itself, has repeatedly thrown obstacles in the path of economic recovery. This belief has been gaining headway for some time. It has been discussed seriously by members of congress and emphasized everywhere in private conference.

This impression is summed up in a series of circumstances, rather than in any single action. For one thing, it is felt that a continuous, wilful effort has been made to spread and popularize malicious doctrine, to keep the feeling of class hatred at the burning point; that certain government officials, in and out of Washington, have nurtured suspicion and discouraged co-operation between capital and labor. The result has been to turn such little harmony as formerly prevailed between the two groups into discord.

Only recently one union official, affiliated with CIO, blandly announced they had "taken over" utility properties in a midwestern state. Another union, with the same affiliations, seized a vessel in New York harbor. These examples of unlawful seizure of property, on top of many similar illegal practices, have engendered a feeling that it is no longer safe to invest in business, the ownership of which may, at any time, be put in jeopardy at the whim of an ambitious labor leader. No lasting progress toward recovery need be looked for until the right of private ownership is once more guaranteed by the government.

Furthermore, labor, without legal responsibility equal with industry, is armed with a weapon the use of which keeps business in a continuous state of uneasiness and turmoil. This unbalanced legal status must not only be remedied by legislation, but labor, itself, must inject discipline into its ranks. The principle of collective bargaining, so necessary in adjusting differences between employer and employee, might profitably be adopted in settling factional disputes in the ranks of labor.

For another thing, it is felt that the banking business has, in the past, been a tremendous factor in the development of the nation. But, because of a few infractions, high government officials have repeatedly denounced banks and bankers as a whole, bringing the business generally into bad repute. This has provoked numerous investigations, resulting in added restrictions, hampering regulations and, finally, in the government itself going into the business.

No bank can successfully compete with its own government. It cannot lend at such low rates of interest or afford to carry the long non-commercial maturities. But, most important of all, bank loans must be made in definite anticipation of being repaid when due. At the present time more than 23 per cent of industrial loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are in default. The nation's banks could not long endure under such a burden. Less government in the banking business would be more conducive to recovery.

Another obstruction to business is the time actually wasted in guarding its properties against encroachment. If not actual seizure, by the government, interference is prevalent at so many points of operation that the machinery is clogging. More time is devoted by management to following regulations than to actual business. Clerks are harassed by an army of emissaries from a multiplicity of bureaus—inspecting, questioning, demanding an ever-increasing number of reports. Throw in wage-hour regulations and a smooth, efficient functioning of business will be practically impossible.

And the many conflicting pronouncements by spokesmen of the administration, not excluding the President himself, have been fraught with an aggravating indefiniteness. No sooner has industry adjusted itself to one premise than another speech has indicated a complete reversal of policy. This condition of uncertainty has had a gradual paralyzing effect on individual initiative. No man will risk his capital in the promotion of a new venture.

On the contrary, he would prefer to contract, if not actually retire from business under such a circumstance. The circumstance, not the desire to quit or sit down, is the dominating influence.

Despite the present plan for another attempted purchase, the feeling that economic recovery cannot be bought is gaining headway among an ever increasing number of thinking Americans. Political palliatives for economic suffering, like drugs for human relief, it is being realized, too easily become habit forming. Less, not more, medicine is needed if a cure is to be effected, if the nation is not to become permanently addicted to the use of the political hypodermic.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

One question which will have to be answered by railroad employees themselves, according to the current number of Railway Age, is whether workers shall continue receiving present wages with a diminishing number of jobs, or accept a lower scale and keep more men at work. In April, 1933, the number of railroad employees had declined to 913,070, the lowest in 40 years. The next lowest point was reached in April, 1933, with 919,881.

But, according to this authority, "gross earnings in April, 1933, were only $173,300,000 as compared with $219,543,000 in April, 1932, although in April, 1932, the number of employees was smaller than in the corresponding month of 1933. This was because the railroads could not pay the higher wages of April, 1932, to as many workers as they had in April, 1933.

"The number of employees in July, 1937, the last month before advances were made in wages last year, was 1,174,434. The decline from this high to the low of April, 1933, was 261,364 or 22.1-2 per cent. This terrific reduction was due principally, of course, to the decline in traffic, but the evidence is conclusive that it also has been largely due to the advance in wages.

"Railroads had to reduce the number of employees more than ever before in order, as far as practicable, to offset the effect of the highest wages in history on their operating expenses. Reduction of employment can be stopped only by either an increase in gross earnings (improved business conditions) or a reduction in wages, or both.

"A little more study of conditions should bring about a revolutionary change in the policies of union organizations. Something is wrong with the theory of 'high wages to increase purchasing power' when advances to the highest level ever attained is quickly followed by such a decline in employment as has recently occurred. The employees who have lost their jobs must be beginning to have misgivings as to whether their leaders are following policies that are promoting their welfare. Policies which actually advance the interests of all members of railway organizations should be, it would seem, the most serious concern of union leadership."

It can not be doubted that the "railroad question," in all of its aspects, is one of the most aggravating of all the nation's economic problems. If the leaders of labor and management could get together and settle their differences, it would be one step, at least, toward a solution. It should be remembered, however, that unless the railroads can continue to operate on a self-sustaining basis, can weather the present economic storm, there will be fewer and fewer jobs and, eventually, lower wages for everybody.

DIRTY AMERICAN COTTON

P. K. Norris, marketing specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, speaking before the Georgia Cotton Producers' Association, pleaded for such baling of American cotton that it would be as attractive on the markets of the world as competitive bales from other cotton producing countries.

If a reform in the baling of cotton in this country can be achieved, it will remove one of the most ancient and shameful demonstrations of American commerce from the market places of the world.

When cotton is unloaded from cargo vessels at old world ports, it is, if it comes from America, a disgrace. Bales ragged, torn and so dirtied they are coal black, appear like anything in the world but the white, fleecy staple. They might be mistaken for bundles of rags recovered from forgotten corners of abandoned coal mines.

Other nations bale their cotton neatly and attractively. The coverage is complete and the package in which their staple reaches market is immediately attractive to the eye.

There is, inevitably, a heavy loss from the American bales. Not only the loss in transit, from the ragged tears in the bale, but the loss caused when the manufacturer must strip off the filthy outer layer before he can reach usable cotton.

However, while the movement for reform in American cotton baling is getting under way, the south should insist that cotton itself be used as a wrapping material for all cotton bales. The insistence on jute bagging for a cover for cotton bales to the southern producer a market for his product which would have valuable effect in reducing the surplus crop.

All arguments in favor of jute are, intrinsically, minor points which should be swept aside and overcome, in order that this, an imported material, be no longer favored over American-grown cotton for a purpose so closely allied with the cotton producing industry.

Editorial of the Day

A GOOD RULE WITHOUT LAW
(From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

It is unfortunate for the country and for the entire relief program that congress has so persistently refused to put its stamp of disapproval upon political activities by those in charge of spending the relief millions.

It is hard to imagine a function of government that should be freer of such activities.

By its refusal, congress has laid its membership wide open to the taunt that the millions are to be spent for poll priming rather than for pump priming.

It will be difficult, of course, to keep politics out, especially since the record has been made in Washington. The cue will be taken by every jobholder all along the line.

But the absence of a prohibitory law does not mean that responsible officials in Washington should resign themselves to the situation. They can by careful selection and vigilant attention help to reduce politics to a possible minimum. This is a new duty imposed on Mr. Hopkins, the chief administrator, and his immediate subordinates.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

FARLEY HOLDS THE KEY WASHINGTON, June 12.—The key to the present political course of James Aloysius Farley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee of New York, chairman of the Democratic National Committee and postmaster general of the United States, is to be found in his suite at the Postoffice Department.

The purpose of the Hoover-Imperial style of architecture, of which the post office is an outstanding specimen, was to make bureaucrats look as much as possible like bank presidents. The Ropers and the Cummingses, the Perkinses and the Farleys are enshrined in opulent wildernesses of columns and ornament, which suggest only that they cost a great deal of money. In all Washington, moreover, the Farley chambers are by far the most magnificent. The First National Bank of New York and the Cathedral of St. Paul appear to have been the architect's twin inspirations.

The son of an obscure Irish businessman in Haverstraw, N. Y., Big Jim is essentially a simple fellow. When he is not traveling cross-country, dedicating post offices and talking things over with the boys in the local organizations, he sits among his splendors and remembers what a long way he has come.

He remembers the glorious moment, 29 years ago, when he became a member of the Rockland County Democratic Committee. He remembers his first political job, as town clerk of Stony Point. He remembers his appointment to the New York State Athletic Commission, his remarkable capture of the chairmanship, and all the subsequent thousands of Annie Oakleys for the ringside which he passed out to visiting bigwigs. He remembers the days when he was an Elk on a tour, corraling delegates for Roosevelt. He remembers his first great triumph in 1932. And when he returns from his trips down Memory Lane, his head is always full of gratitude to the Democratic party, which he regards as the real maker of his fortunes.

"After my country and my church," he says, "my party comes first with me."

NO HUNTSMAN, HE Party loyalty is the explanation of the fundamental disagreement on policy dividing the big, genial, astute postmaster general from the President. Big Jim is not a heresy hunter.

To be sure, the defeat of Senator Millard F. Tydings, of Maryland, would give him some pleasure, and he would not weep to see "Cotton Ed" Smith beaten in South Carolina. But he undoubtedly deplores the President's use of the primaries for a wholesale party purge. He was on the opposite side of the State Athletic Commission, his remarkable capture of the chairmanship, and all the subsequent thousands of Annie Oakleys for the ringside which he passed out to visiting bigwigs. He remembers the days when he was an Elk on a tour, corraling delegates for Roosevelt. He remembers his first great triumph in 1932. And when he returns from his trips down Memory Lane, his head is always full of gratitude to the Democratic party, which he regards as the real maker of his fortunes.

It is fortunate, therefore, that a long-planned and needed vacation in Alaska and the northwest will keep Big Jim out of Washington in primary time. Thus, unpleasant words will be avoided, and he can return to pick up the pieces and put over the Democratic candidates, whoever they may be. These tasks are more congenial to him than the others. He is rather make peace between factions to elect a Democratic dog-catcher than win a thousand bets on the races.

TOWARD 1940 Big Jim is just the sort of fellow his name suggests. A large, pink-faced man of pleasant aspect and manners, he is a natural folk for rank and file party workers. Alone among the eminent officials of the New Deal, he knows the local party politics, their habits, appetencies and first names. For this reason, some men around the President fear him and his influence.

He lives simply, does not drink or smoke, and goes out little. His days are dedicated to his party. Unhappily, his devotion to his party is likely to cause his disagreement with the President to recur after the fall elections. Then it will be time to think of 1940, and the elements in the Democracy together with a middle-of-the-road candidate. The President would purge the party, bring in new and more radical blood, and unite it on an aggressively New Dealish platform with an aggressively New Dealish leader.

The two men have been a team for many years. They are still a team, but, unless one or the other changes his mind, the time must come when the team will suffer the fate of most teams.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

Sing me a song of contentment,
A psalm to peace and goodwill;
And thereby arouse new resentment
'Gainst fiends who wantonly kill.

Needed: A Dose Of Ridicule.

Sometimes one's natural faith in the intelligence of mankind is likely to stagger, more or less. You come across, or hear of, such incomprehensibly foolish things that creatures, outwardly normal humans, do. And the wonder arises if man, after all, is an intelligent animal, if he is not a son with logic or if he allows unstable emotion to dictate his actions.

Take some of these fantastic cults, for instance, that flourish in our midst. If you don't believe they flourish, it is just because your path in life doesn't bring you to the contacts by which you could hear of them.

Of course, Los Angeles has for long been considered the hotbed of fantastic, fanatical beliefs. Little sects with queer ideas seem to find a weird sort of satisfaction in the southern California air. Men and women with no better occupation for idle minds turn their energies and enthusiasms to the spreading of doctrines that must originate in the disordered minds of former authors of fairy tales.

Here, in Atlanta.

But these freakish emanations are not confined to the west coast. We have them, in fair number, right in Atlanta.

I could, if it was worth while, some curious tales unfold. But who has time? There is no time. There is a fool in his folly and there is a little profit in spreading the pitiful aberrations of such things for sane and healthy minds to read.

However, there is one cure for such emotional disorders. That is, the power of ridicule. If the followers after most cults can be exposed to the pitying amusement of normal people, they are likely to awake to their own fantasies. If the ridicule comes in time.

Proof of this is evident in the secrecy which always surrounds the kind of things here written of. These groups may advance many plausible arguments why they don't want their affairs made public. But the acknowledged reasons is the true cause of their desire for secrecy. They are afraid of appearing foolish in the eyes of others. That fear may be partly subconscious, but it is there. They would prove they really know, in their saner selves, they are foolish. The wise man doesn't resent being called a fool, because he knows the accusation is false. It is the fool who knows he is a fool who most resents the application of the foolish tag.

Something

Unclean—

Of course there is, too, something unclean about these secret cults. I don't mean some tangible thing you could, if you knew of it, point to as against the rules of decenty. But everything secret, after all, acquires a taint of time. Things of the intellect and things of the emotions require the bright light of public knowledge to keep them sweet and clean and pure, just as the material world—and life itself—requires sunlight if it is not, eventually, to become like the things you find on the under side of a rotted log.

The action, or the habit, or the belief or faith that cannot come into public view is, per se, suspect. And, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, it is truly so.

When a purported healer, for instance, tells you not to mention his methods because, says he, the regular doctors are "jealous," you promptly reject the man as a charlatan. If you are wise. For the "regular doctors" are a group of men who are our best defense against medical fraud and our best helpers in all cases of physical need. You know, if you have any sense at all, that the "healer" who would remain hidden is either afraid of prosecution by law or is a fugitive from a conviction already recorded against him. In almost, if not, all cases.

So, when a new cultus, would interest you in his faith, look with deepest suspicion on the ones who would impose pledges of secrecy and who whisper their theories in hidden places. For the honest faith, like the honest man, has no fear for the bright light of midday and the clear honesty of publicized truth.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Fighting NEW YORK, June 12.—I could go on and on about the freedom of the press. We have had some rogue publishers in our journalism, but the very worst—and you may name your pet abomination—never had the audacity and the power for evil that are presented in the situation I'm going to describe.

A political demagogue and dictator rises to power as the boss of a state machine and starts a little sheet on a job press under a personalized masthead and a slogan promising to make of every man a king or to give somebody $5,000—or something like that. He hamstrings away at his political opponents and at the orthodox or conventional papers without regard for the libel restrictions which handcuff the other side, because he is, as they say in the business, libel-proof. He hasn't so much as a typewriter by way of physical plant or an attachable dime of money. I don't mean that he hasn't got a dime. I mean a dime that can be attached. There is a great difference. And, of course, nobody wants to go the gutter with him on a charge of criminal libel, because there is always the danger that he will prove it on you or prove something else just as embarrassing. Old Jim Watson remarks that nobody ever won a fight with a skunk applies here.

The Boys Well, for the first few weeks he throws "Kick In" his paper away free, but meanwhile the boys of the organization are soliciting subscriptions with the old blackjack. Every jobholder in the state organization has to pay $2.50 or $4.00, whatever, and every one of these is required to hustle a certain number of other subscriptions, the individual quotas being based on the individual's public pay. Do you get the idea? If the individual employee can sell subscriptions to his friends, all right. But if he can't he has to buy them himself as a tax on his job.

And, of course, all the contractors who sell concrete and office supplies, the prison provisions, school books, pipe organs and band instruments to the state government or to local governments controlled by the state machine buy subscriptions, too, so that in a comparatively short time your average little paper, should the battle cry of freedom, has a swell net paid-in-advance circulation.

And now, when the other papers blast him, he blasts back that they are just jealous of his success in business and abusing their press prerogative to attack a business rival. If this is freedom of the press, says he, this coloration and distortion of the news, these reckless, insulting charges that his faithful, voluntary subscribers have been coerced, then, by God, he doesn't know but that, after all, maybe the freedom of the press ought to be curtailed or, anyway, entrusted only to publishers who have a sense of responsibility and fairness.

One Kind For revenue he is doing fine. As a matter of fact, he is the state in harmony with the national administration he counts the WPA workers and employees of other federal activities among his fold, and, of course, all the contractors and supply men doing business in these fields rest the same as those who do business with the state.

And there is the advertising. The contractors and supply men all buy space, and manufacturers and merchants find it wise to do the same. But in the political sense but from the practical viewpoint, because—no kidding—the sheet does have circulation. Never mind how it got the circulation. It's there, paid in advance. Municipalities and county utility companies, even state lunatic asylums and colleges buy advertising in the dictator's paper, and the free press privilege runs for him because you could no more afford to suppress him, even if you could, than you could afford to suppress the most ethical paper in the land, whatever that may be.

When the national dictatorships develop in countries which go haywire the dictators and sub-dictators of about the men who own the prosperous official papers. Mussolini, for instance, and Goering and Streicher.

I like the commercial American press better.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

TRUE GREATNESS.

The Rev. Frank Wilson, preaching at Hyde Park, N. Y., on a recent Sunday morning, with the Front of the United States as one of the audience, read a parable written by a little girl who lives in Manhattan's East Side. The title of the essay was "True Greatness," a portion of which I quote.

"Once there was a woman that had done a big washing and hung it on the line. The line broke and it fell down in the mud, but she didn't say a word; only did it all over again, and this time spread it on the grass, where it couldn't fall. But that night a dog ran over it with muddy feet. When the woman saw what was done she sat down and didn't cry a bit. All she said was, 'Ain't it queer that he didn't mess nothing?' That is true greatness, but it is only people who have done washing that know it."

Wouldn't it be fine on this Monday of another week if we might all take the attitude toward the ups and downs of life of the woman described in the foregoing paragraph? Makes me think of Frank L. Stanton's "Keep A-Goin'!"

If you strike a thorn or rose, Keep a-goin'!
If it hails or if it snows, Keep a-goin'!
Taint no use to sit an' whine When the fish ain't on your line; Bait your hook an' keep a-tryin'— Keep a-goin'!

When it looks like all is up, Keep a-goin'!
Drain the sweetness from the cup, Keep a-goin'!
See the wild birds on the wing, Hear the bells that sweetly ring, When you feel like sighin', sing— Keep a-goin'!

It Doesn't Seem Bad If It Is Done

By NICE PEOPLE LIKE US

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

There is a world of understanding in the story of the old Quaker who said: "All the world is queer but me and thee—and there's a little queer."

We all believe ourselves sane and our judgments reasonable and just, yet it may be that nobody is capable of judging himself as he judges others.

Even without knowledge of the Golden Rule, we realize that justice and equity consist in doing to others as we would have them do to us; yet in practice we qualify this by considering each individual's deserts, and none seems to deserve quite as much as ourselves.

If conscience urges us to treat a heathen as we wish to be treated, vanity or self-interest will answer: "But he is an inferior person and doesn't deserve such treatment."

That seems wholly reasonable to us; but when somebody else uses that excuse to justify his unfairness, it seems absurd because we don't concede his superiority.

Do you realize that our own people, here in free and righteous America, have done with clear conscience every base and brutal thing now charged against Hitler?

Hitler coveted Austria, marched in his soldiers and took it. Those who opposed him were shot. Jews were robbed of their rich properties and driven into exile, and critics of this crime were told: "They are not Nordics like us, but inferior people who deserve nothing."

One hundred years ago, a mountain paradise in the Smokies was owned by the Cherokee Indians—17,000 peaceful people who lived in wooden houses, cultivated crops, made their own clothing and pottery, and asked nothing of the world.

A white man found a nugget of gold on their property, and they were doomed. When they refused to leave, soldiers marched in and rounded them up like cattle. Their homes were burned. Those who offered resistance were shot. One thousand of them in mountain caves, and eventually were allowed to remain. Of the others, 4,000 died on the long cruel march to the unknown west.

It didn't seem a brutal crime, for the victims were mere Indians who had no rights in a white man's land.

Apologists say it couldn't happen now, for we have grown better. In what particular? Are the jails less crowded?

We confess the evil done in the past because the guilty are dead. But the things we are doing now will seem as base to future generations, and we feel no guilt because self-interest blinds us.

REPRESENTING GEORGIA

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—With more knowledge of pay legislation in his credit than any other conferee on the pending labor standards bill, including those from both senate and house, Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, took the lead last week in placing the south back in the saddle in so far as satisfactory differentials for that section are concerned.

From the time hearings on the old Black-Connelly wage hour bill were opened last year, Ramspeck, now second ranking majority member of the house committee on labor, insisted the south should not be placed on the same wage basis as other sections of the country and that if a satisfactory differential was not accorded his section, the likelihood of labor standards legislation at this session was not bright.

Although miles apart in their convictions on governmental policies, Representative Ramspeck and the late Representative "Billy" Connelly, of Massachusetts, were the closest of friends. They saw eye to eye on all matters affecting the bettering of conditions for the laboring men and women of the country, but Connelly, coming from a highly industrialized center of New England, could not appreciate the wide difference between labor standards of his section and those of Dixie. But, the two worked together in their search for ways of improving labor conditions of all wage earners in the country.

Hague Shunted So, after Ramspeck's shunting during pendency of his wage-hour bill, Ramspeck carried on where the Massachusettsian left off. Because of the Atlanta's close and intimate study of labor conditions in the nation, both President Roosevelt and Speaker of the House Bankhead let it be known they preferred him for chairman rather than Mrs. Mary Norton, of New Jersey, whose committee seniority outranked the Georgian. However, Mrs. Norton insisted she be given the chairmanship after her sponsor, Boss Frank Hague, of Jersey City, advised her to take it, so Ramspeck contented himself with accepting a first lieutenantancy under Chairman Norton.

Although Mrs. Norton had been a member of the labor committee longer than Ramspeck, she had attended few if any hearings on the Black-Connelly bill, and knew little about it. Accordingly, when a joint senate-house committee was appointed to hold hearings on the bill during last year's special session of congress, Ramspeck and not Mrs. Norton was named a member from the lower chamber.

Georgian Knew Ramspeck knew the weakness of the house bill and the strength of the senate measure. So, teaming up with two other southern conferees, Senators Pepper, of Florida, and Ellender, of Louisiana, he was able to induce northern and western conferees to appreciate the delicate labor problems of his section of the United States.

As the

REPORT ON AIR BILL FOLLOWS FINDINGS OF CLARK HOWELL

House Approves Measure to Set Up Independent Authority.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, June 12.—The conference report on the civil aeronautics authority, accepted by the house yesterday, embodied in it the general recommendations of the federal aviation commission, of which the late Clark Howell Sr., editor and president of The Atlanta Constitution, was chairman.

If adopted by the senate this week, and Democratic leaders admit it will become law before final adjournment of the congress, it will create an independent aeronautics authority or commission which will control all civil aviation activities, both governmental and private, just as proposed by Chairman Howell in a lengthy report which he submitted to President Roosevelt late in January of 1933.

The authority will be composed of five members who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, at an annual salary each of $12,000, together with an administrator whose salary shall also be $12,000 a year.

Commission Membership.
Chairman Howell and his commission, which was composed of Edward P. Warner, vice chairman and former assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aviation; Albert J. Berres, labor representative; Jerome C. Hunsaker, recognized authority on law of the air, and Franklin K. Lane Jr., son of a former secretary of the interior, agreed with congress that both army and navy air units should be a part of our national defense organization and their administration kept under the War and Navy Departments.

During August of 1934, Chairman Howell visited Europe and made an intensive study of the aeronautical status and of the governmental administration of aeronautical matters in four of the major European countries.

On September 24, Mr. Howell opened public hearings in this country, which continued over the next six weeks and in the course of which his commission heard 102 witnesses and compiled 3,519 pages of typed record. His commission received testimony from members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, from members of congress, from each branch of the government service actively interested in aviation, and from such well-known air figures as Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh; Hugo Eckener, German authority on lighter-than-air craft; Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, World War flying ace, and others prominent in aviation industry.

Aviation Investment.
During his investigations, Chairman Howell found that, in 1935, the total of original privately financed investment in the aeronautical industry since all of it put in between 1927 and 1929, approximated $550,000,000. To this figure he added another $90,000,000 for the investment of municipal airports, and reached the conclusion that such a heavy investment of American dollars should be placed under the jurisdiction of an independent agency of the government. Neither President Roosevelt nor the congress agreed with the Howell commission at the time, but adoption of the conference report fully justifies its findings.

Anticipating that congress would eventually come around to his way of thinking, Mr. Howell, in the conclusion of his report to President Roosevelt, said: "When this commission met for the first time in the early part of July, 1934, only two of its members had ever before known each other. We represented five radically different types of experience and as many distinct approaches to our collective problem. However, we feel that we have attained a sincere unanimity upon the essentials. The history of American aviation has not been conspicuous for unanimity of opinion, and that five men of such widely varied background come to so full a measure of agreement we take to be an encouraging sign. We now transmit our report to the congress, which directed us to make this study, and in whose hands the determination of the future course of American air policy and the future magnitude of American air operations necessarily lies."

The Howell report was signed on January 22, 1935.

The aviation authority just created by the congress aims to promote the development and safety and to provide for the regulation of civil aeronautics. It is empowered to perform such acts, to conduct such investigations, to issue and amend such orders, and to make and amend such general or special rules, regulations and procedure as it shall deem necessary to establish the best aeronautics program in the world.

MRS. JOHN AUSTIN, OF CONYERS, DIES
Was Wife of Well Known Georgia Farmer.

Mrs. John J. Austin, 68, mother of Hal Austin, postmaster of Conyers, died in a private hospital yesterday afternoon after a two-month illness.

A native of Doraville, Ga., Mrs. Austin moved to a farm near Conyers more than 20 years ago and had lived there since. Her husband is a well-known farmer in the Conyers district.

Surviving, besides the husband and son, are two sisters, Mrs. C. J. Mobley, of Conyers, and Mrs. A. J. McGhee, of Tucson, Ariz.

Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Prominent Figures in Athens Exercises

University of Georgia Graduates Told To Retain Their Faith in God

ATHENS, Ga., June 12.—(AP)—The Rev. John A. Davison, pastor of the First Baptist church of Selma, Ala., told University of Georgia seniors today they were about to go forth into a troubled and confused world, and urged them to retain their faith in God.

Preaching a baccalaureate sermon, Dr. Davison said men had been without faith for 50 years, and added loss of faith and skepticism were the price of individualistic religion and free thought. The university is scheduled to observe its annual commencement exercises Tuesday, when a graduating class of 600 receives degrees.

President Edwin R. Embree, of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, Chicago, will deliver the principal address.

Clark Howell, president and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, is to give the annual alumni day oration tomorrow.

HOOVER TO GO NORTH.
MIAMI, Fla., June 12.—(AP)—Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said he would return to Washington in a day or two and concentrate his activities on the Peter Levine kidnapping.

BERT ADAMS CAMP OPENS FOR SCOUTS

Director Says 'Trooping Period' Will Last Four Weeks.

Bert Adams Boy Scout camp, near Vinings, was opened yesterday for "troop camping" under the direction of Joe L. Ballenger, assistant Scout executive of the Atlanta area council.

The "troop camping" period—during which scoutmasters will take their troop members to the camp for short periods, will last for four weeks, giving way to the "mass camp," when regular programs will be followed under direction of trained leaders. The "mass" camp will begin on July 10.

Sixty acres of wooded area have been added to the camp since last year. It was the gift of W. C. Wardlaw and will be developed into a nature preserve and bird sanctuary. A new athletic field also will be constructed on part of this new land.

Mr. Ballenger said yesterday all Scouts in the Atlanta area council have received folders about the camp and have been urged to send in their reservations as soon as possible.

SING SING TO DEPICT BEAUTY OF TRAVELING

OSSINING, N. Y., June 12.—(AP)—Sing Sing prison, where huge barriers are erected to keep guests from straying, is contemplating adding travelogues as part of its curriculum—hoping, perhaps, the inmates will not take the lesson literally.

FOREMAN INSURANCE AGENCY HAS REMODELED OFFICES

GROWING BUSINESS AND LARGER STAFF, MORE ROOM NEEDED

Agency Founded in 1886 Shows 10 Per Cent Increase Over Last Year.

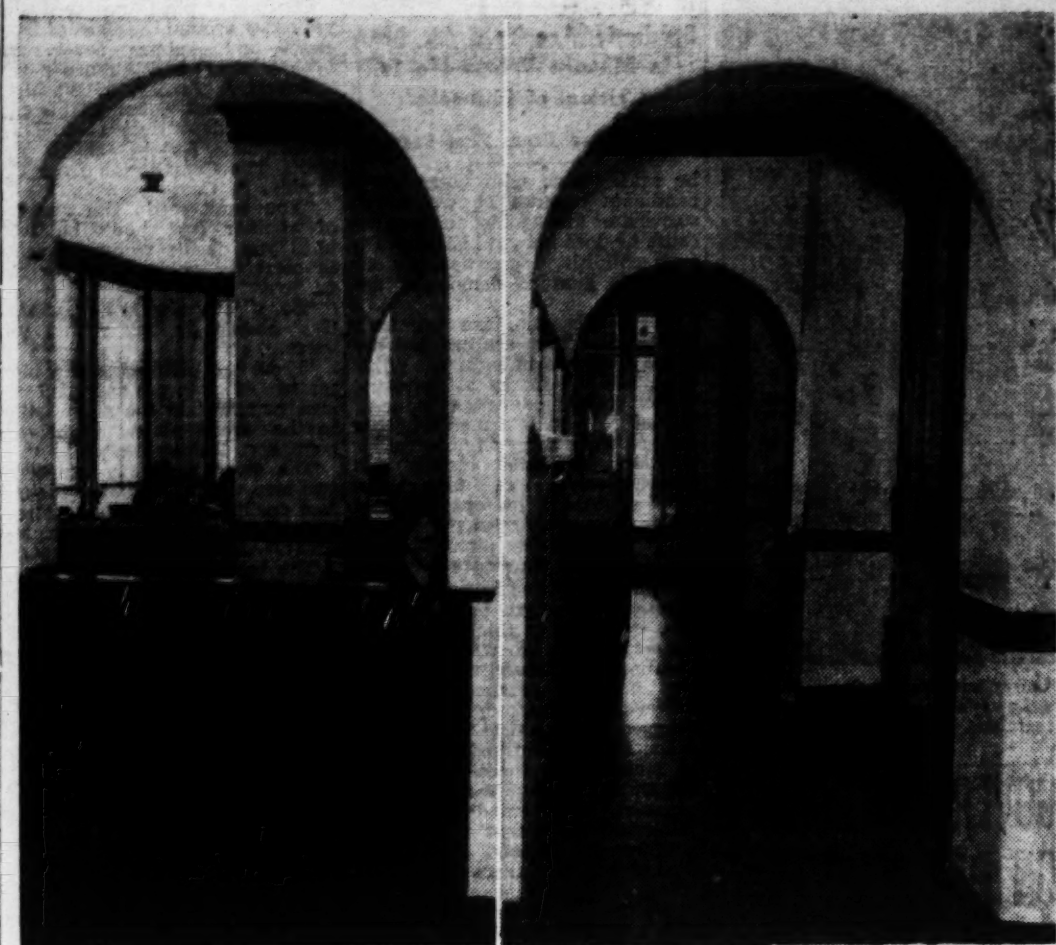

For the past few weeks R. L. Foreman, state agent of Georgia for the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, N. J., has been receiving congratulations from friends and policyholders on the attractive and modern appearance of the company's offices on the eighth floor of the First National bank building.

Complete remodeling and enlargement of the office space has been made necessary because of additions to the company's Atlanta field staff and its expanding business. The offices have been refurnished entirely with steel furniture which makes the Mutual Benefit's headquarters in Atlanta one of the most attractive offices to be found in the city.

While life insurance sales throughout the country have shown some decrease this year, the Foreman Agency has registered an increase averaging 10 per cent over the same period of last year. The Mutual Benefit has long been known as a policyholders' company and has an unusually liberal policy contract. The Atlanta agency was established in 1886, and has been under the management of R. L. Foreman since 1906. Associated with his father is R. L. Foreman Jr., and agency officials include L. B. Webb, cashier; W. S. Williams, agency secretary; and Graham Kirkpatrick, supervisor.

The Atlanta agency of the Mutual Benefit is one of the top-ranking agencies of the company and its members are continuously prominent on the company's honor rolls. Among the 75 representatives of the company throughout the state is W. H. Cobb, who has qualified as a member of the "Million-Dollar Round Table" for several years, and a large number of men who have won the company's service emblem for continuous representation for a period of more than 20 years. Outside of Atlanta the company has offices in Albany, Americus, Athens, Hartwell, Augusta, Macon, Columbus and Savannah and maintains representatives at numerous other points.

COLD TREATMENTS OFFERED BY RUSH

Beeman's Laboratory, Local Concern, Manufactures Three Products.

With 22 years' experience behind him, and with a location at 154-156 Edgewood avenue for nine years, E. A. Rush, owner and manager of Beeman's Laboratory, has established a solid reputation as a manufacturing druggist and jobber, and is keeping a flow of his products continuously going out of the city to points all over the southeastern states.

In Atlanta, of course, the laboratory is well known and is receiving its share of patronage for such products as the concern offers. The leading lines of the laboratory are two distinct products manufactured as relief for colds and one product designed for use in the treatment of irritations between the toes or burning sensations in the feet, insect bites, poison oak and ivy, ordinary burns and sunburn, pimples, blackheads, and the like. "B. G. O. has been sold for more than 20 years," said Mr. Rush, "and is used by thousands of people in every walk of life. Children like B. G. O. because it offers relief and does not burn."

The two cold products are B. M. S., a new mentholated cold rub, containing mutton suet, and B. Q. R., an internal treatment which its manufacturers claim will bring quick relief from colds. Either of these products can be purchased at practically all leading drug stores, and Mr. Rush states that he has on file thousands of letters whose writers have testified as to the quick relief and perfect satisfaction given by the use of B. Q. R. The cold rub—or B. M. S.—its manufacturers claim, is just as effective in its relief as is B. Q. R. "And you can say that if purchasers are not perfectly satisfied with any of these products," concluded Mr. Rush, "that their money will be cheerfully refunded."

TWO FACULTY NAMES OMITTED BY ERROR

Inadvertently two members of the faculty of the Washington Seminary were omitted from the faculty list in the news story as printed last Monday on this page. The names of Mrs. Richard T. Monette, department of English, and Miss Ruth Dabney Smith, department of violin, should have been included in the faculty of this long-established and outstanding training school for girls. We are glad to make this explanation.

BROWNLEE & LIVELY OFFER SANITATION AS MAIN FEATURE

Cows From Their Model Dairy Loaned for Unique Milking Contest.

Immediately following the very unique milking contest engaged in between Governor Ed Rivers and Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts, on the grounds of the state capitol Friday afternoon, the Governor entered into the quietude of his private office and issued a proclamation declaring the month of June 10 to July 10 as "Buy-More-Milk Month." He called upon the people of the state to do this in order that they might "have the knowledge and satisfaction that they are helping the farmers of our state and our people to greater health and happiness."

Maybe it was the pure and rich stream of milk that the Governor extracted from the cows furnished from the model dairy of Brownlee & Lively that had something to do with his proclamation. Maybe it was.

For a quarter of a century Brownlee & Lively have recognized the grave responsibility of the producer of milk to the public, and by constant vigilance and the expenditure of thousands of dollars for modern equipment have achieved an outstanding success.

A strong feature of the milk produced at the Brownlee & Lively model dairy, on Briarcliff road, and a feature that has brought popularity and success for the firm, is the absolute sanitation and cleanliness maintained throughout the dairy plant. "All equipment used in handling this milk," says Mr. Lively, "undergoes daily sterilization, inside and out, and every member of our staff must undergo a periodical medical examination of the most rigorous sort to measure up to health standards. We have spared no expense during our 25 years in the dairy business to safeguard the health of our customers, giving them the best, purest and most wholesome milk that can be produced. Our cows are tested every 60 days for Bang's disease and are also tested for tuberculosis."

The Brownlee & Lively dairy has unexcelled facilities for the sanitary handling of milk. It has its own ice plant and refrigeration system. Immediately after each cow is milked the milk is carried into the cooling room, where it is double strained with specially constructed straining cloths, and then quickly poured into the cooler, where it passes over coils through which ice-cold brine is circulating. Almost instantly the temperature is reduced from 92 degrees to 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Brownlee & Lively's corps of courteous, well-trained deliverymen, equipped with a fleet of refrigerated trucks, delivers the milk to the doors of their customers. Delivery is considered an important part of the dairy's business, and particular attention is devoted to maintaining a superior service.

The seminary has just closed a largely attended session, graduating 40 girls, and has already received a number of enrollments for the fall term, beginning September 15.

Bremen Steel Co. Is Now Offering Help to Builders

In order to render a better and more efficient steel service to builders of commercial or residential buildings throughout this entire section, the Bremen Steel Company, at 329 Decatur street, has organized itself into a company for that purpose.

The company is operated by M. W. Bremen, having the same management as the Bremen Iron and Metal Company.

"We formed this company," said Mr. Bremen, "because of the growing demand for a structural shop in Atlanta. So well has our steel company been received by the building public that we are now engaged in increasing our shop to double its present size and capacity. This will enable us to render the very highest type of service along our lines."

The company maintains an experienced staff of estimators who can arrive at the cost of steel work in contemplated buildings prior to construction. It also has in its force a complete staff of workers, every one experienced in the fabrication of steel, Mr. Bremen declares.

JAPANESE WARPLANES AGAIN RAID CANTON

CANTON, China, June 12.—(AP)—Japanese warplanes raided Canton by the light of the moon tonight for the sixteenth consecutive day of bombardments which have inflicted casualties estimated between 6,000 and 10,000.

There were heavier detonations from the exploding bombs in scattered sections of the city. They fell in already devastated areas and were believed to have caused little damage.

Of the casualties from the relentless raids, it was estimated between 3,000 and 4,000 have been killed outright or to have died from wounds caused by shell fragments and falling buildings.

Besides daily raids on Canton, the Japanese blasted surrounding Kwantung province and adjoining Pukien province on the northeast. From the seacoast 40 Japanese planes roared far inland, bombing scores of villages Japanese alleged to be military objectives.

The belief persisted that this bomb-shattered metropolis was in for more and heavier attacks.

Grave Anxiety Felt. Foreign consular authorities expressed grave anxiety over the possibility of new raids on the densely populated waterfront, close to Shamen, the foreign settlement.

In the waterfront area are a powerhouse, the Pearl River

TYPEWRITER GIVES CLUE IN EXTORTION

Owner Hunted as Writer of Levine Notes.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 12. (UP)—Police and federal agents tonight sought to trace the owner of a battered typewriter, found near Samp Mortar reservoir a few miles from here, on which two purported "ransom notes" in the Levine kidnapping case were written.

It was believed police sought the man as an extortioner, rather than as the kidnaper and killer of 12-year-old Peter Levine, of New Rochelle, N. Y., who disappeared last February and was found dead two weeks ago on the shore of Long Island sound.

A caretaker at the reservoir, Clifford W. Gillette, found the frame and parts of the machinery of the typewriter, which was traced through its manufacturer to the Fairfield, Conn., railroad depot.

NEW EARTHQUAKE FELT IN BELGIUM

Mild Tremor Lasting Three Seconds Is Recorded.

BRUSSELS, June 12.—(AP)—A new earthquake, considerably weaker than that which jolted a corner of Europe from England to the Rhineland yesterday, was recorded today in Belgium. The tremor lasted three seconds.

bridge and other vital buildings which the Japanese have designated as "military objectives."

Americans, Britons, Frenchmen and Germans making up the foreign settlement population, for days have been living under wartime conditions. It was believed that new mass raids on the near-by water front would result in their evacuation.

The Japanese have destroyed one of Canton's major power plants and the loss of the plant near Shamen would place the community in total darkness.

Trains Continue. Although every railway station in the city has been demolished by the raiders, passenger and freight trains continue to operate.

Munitions are flowing by the trainload into the city.

Canton's normal population of 1,250,000 has shrunk to less than 400,000, the bewildered populace scattering in all directions, sleeping in the protecting grass of open fields and finding food where they can.

Here Are Drowned Man's Cap and String of Fish

James Kelvin, of Bolton, who aided in search for the bodies of Jim Lowry and Wesley Conn, Riverside textile workers, drowned Saturday afternoon in the Chattahoochee, shows Lowry's cap and string of fish found in the victims' overturned bateau. and his companion and swept them midstream "before they knew it."

"We tried to reach the bank once or twice, but couldn't make it because of the current," said Ginn. "Finally, we were taken close to shore about a mile from where we entered the water."

"We rested on the bank a long time, and then decided we couldn't swim back to our starting point. It grew dark, and we knew we wouldn't be able to find our bicycles and clothes, so we just remained where we were."

Not Much Sleep. The youths said mosquitoes "bothered them all night" and that they did not get much sleep. When day broke, they trudged back to their belongings, to learn of the drowning of the two men and the alarm they had caused.

"We never thought anyone would be hunting us," said Parrot. "It was pretty uncomfortable. We slept close together and fought mosquitoes. I never knew there was so many down by the river."

"Once in a while, we heard a train whistle, far off. That was the only sound of civilization we heard. Yes, I was scared. I guess that's why I didn't sleep much."

Parrot was graduated last week from Joe E. Brown Junior High school.

Bodies of Lowry and Conn were taken to the Barrett Funeral Home, Bolton. Funeral plans will be announced.

Missing Airliner Found Wrecked In Yosemite Park

ger, Victor Krause, Lincoln, Neb.; and the crew of the plane, Pilot John D. Graves, 35, Palo Alto; Co-Pilot C. W. Wallace, 29, San Francisco, and Stewardess Martha M. Wilson, 23, Philadelphia.

As soon as word reached here that the wreckage had been discovered, parties were organized to climb to the spot to bring out the bodies.

One ground party was to start at dawn tomorrow under the leadership of L. A. Merriam, park superintendent.

T. W. A. planned to send at least one plane to the area. It was to take off from San Francisco and base at Fresno.

MRS. VAN SLYCKE DIES AT AGE OF 44

Succumbs in Hospital After Long Illness.

Mrs. Carroll Guy Van Slycke, 44, died here last night in a private hospital after a lengthy illness.

The former Miss Mina Hughes, Mrs. Van Slycke was the wife of an employee of the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington, D. C. For the past few years, they had made their home in cities in the far west.

She was a member of the Inman Park Methodist church.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a daughter, Miss Wilhelmnia Van Slycke, of 957 Euclid avenue, N. E.; two sons, Guy and James Van Slycke; three brothers, Fred, Robert and H. H. Hughes and two sisters, Mrs. J. E. Dickerson and Mrs. T. E. Jones, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be announced by Awtry & Lowndes.

PEACE GROUPS ASK PLANE SALES BAN

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP) Six peace organizations called on the administration today to prevent the sale of 400 airplanes by American firms to Great Britain.

The organizations, noting the recent pronouncement of Secretary Hull against sale of material for use in bombing civilian populations, said in a statement: "It is well known that Great Britain is one of the offenders in this practice. The bombing of helpless women and children on the northwest frontier of India is a matter of common knowledge."

"If the administration wants to halt this barbarous practice, the British plane order should be stopped now."

STALIN TOPS LIST IN TWO ELECTIONS

MOSCOW, June 12.—(AP)—Joseph Stalin's native Georgia elected a supreme Soviet of 237 members today with Stalin's name topping the list.

Armenia also elected a supreme Soviet with 256 members and there, too, Stalin, the secretary of the central committee of the Communist party, was the first choice.

GOVERNORS PRAISED ON PAY-HOUR FIGHT

Alabama Official Says Dixie's
Rail Demands Aided
Her Senators.

Hugh White, president of Alabama Public Service Commission, expressed the conviction here yesterday that southeastern governors' efforts to obtain lower freight rates for this section had been a factor in the success of southern senators in winning a compromise on federal wage-hour legislation.

"It is my opinion that the fight by Governor Graves, of Alabama; Rivers, of Georgia; and Johnston, of South Carolina, as a subcommittee of the Southeastern Governors' conference, is responsible in large measure for the success of southern senators in obtaining recognition of transportation costs as a major factor in wage-fixing," he said.

White stopped here en route to Athens, to attend a reunion of the University of Georgia class of 1898.

ATLANTA ARRESTED IN FLORIDA ROBBERY

FORT MYERS, Fla., June 12.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff L. H. Furen said today a man listed as E. A. Attaway, of Atlanta, Ga., was arrested here and charged with the armed robbery of L. J. Liles, 66-year-old Bonita Springs resident.

Furen said Liles told officers he was beaten and robbed of $15 at his home last night. Liles said he was forced at the point of a knife to accompany his assailant.

Released later, Liles said he returned home about dawn.

Furen said Attaway was arrested at a bus station here.

BURNS ADDRESSES TECH GRADUATES

Students Are Told 'A Man
Is Mature When He Is Critical of Himself.'

he said. "One man votes for a candidate because he wears red suspenders and against another because he does not cut his hair. On such childish judgments does our zealously guarded democracy depend."

"Criminals, too, are criminals not because they are bad but because they are immature. What, then, are the marks of maturity, which college education induces? A mature man is a man who has learned three things: to control his emotions, to think clearly and consecutively, and to choose worthy goals in his own life and reach those goals through constant labor under trying circumstances."

Still Immature. "That man who gives way to expressions of anger and jealousy, who is unable to think clearly or consecutively, or who weakens and becomes stunted under obstacles has not reached maturity, however long his body might have dragged through time."

Dr. Burns identified the means to maturity as three-fold. "Seek the truth," he cautioned, "through constant open-mindedness and self-criticism; accept the responsibilities of society, always remembering that there is no such thing as a self-made man; and learn the transference of personality through constant contact with the great, if not of the present, then of the past, through reading the thoughts of the long dead who have given you the rich heritage of your world today." He added:

"A man must ask himself three things: What have I done to justify my education? What have I done to be worthy of my country? What have I done to pay my debt to the God who gave me life and joy?"

Ivy or Ivey? And Is It Ave? Or May Be Av?

Confusion piled on confusion yesterday around the signs of I-v-y street and Auburn a-v-e.

Robert E. Ansley, of Washington, a frequent visitor to this city, read yesterday's story about I-v-y street and I-v-e-y street and wrote The Constitution from Columbia, S. C.

"You can't settle the question of whether 'Ivy' should be 'Ivey' until you decide whether avenue is correctly abbreviated as 'av,' or 'ave.'"

"So, if 'ave' should be 'av' then 'Ivy' should be 'Ivey,' and vice versa."

"From the pictures it is a mere matter of transposition and the sign painter had the right letters in the wrong place. Right? In confusion, Robert Ansley."

The story yesterday concerned two men who argued over the correct spelling of an Atlanta street. One said "Ivy" and the other said "Ivey." A small bet was wagered.

The men walked to the corner of Auburn and Ivy, or Ivey, street to read the city street signs. On the southwest corner they read:

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK—I met my two eldest grandchildren this morning as they came off the train from Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. McDuffy. They looked fresh and blooming in spite of their long trip east from Seattle, which began on Tuesday night. There was some confusion about the trunks, which either stayed in Albany or went on to New York, but soon after we reached home we heard that they had arrived.

We spent very little time at the station, for the children were anxious to get home. Mrs. McDuffy went up to the house with the bags in my mother-in-law's chauffeur-driven station wagon and the two children drove up with me. They exclaimed at every house and familiar landmark.

We reached the big house a little ahead of time, and so my mother-in-law, who had told me firmly she would be on the front porch, was only halfway down the stairs. That made no difference to the children, they dashed in and threw their arms about her and then flew up to their rooms. Only a minute was spent there, for they had to dash out to the stables to see the horses and the army grooms who are their old friends.

I think most of the day will be spent racing from place to place, seeing people they know and recognizing familiar objects. My mother-in-law is simply thrilled at having them home again. I asked her if she was going to be in for supper tonight and she promptly said: "Why, you don't think I'd go out the first day the children are home?"

I think seeing these young things made me read the details of the Cash kidnap confession with even greater horror. It seems to me, that anyone who can kidnap a child and allow any harm to come to it, must be mentally deranged. Much as I admire the work which Mr. J. Edgar Hoover and his G-men are doing, I am beginning to wonder whether another branch of the public service is not neglecting some very useful work.

Should not our local health departments keep a very careful watch over their communities and, at the first sign that any individual is mentally below par, should not steps be taken to safeguard the rest of the community? We have a big enough population now in our insane asylums, but there are other ways of improving the mental health of the nation and I think we have neglected this aspect of our health problem. We should make studies of areas where there are known to be groups of mentally defective people and decide what measures can be taken to prevent criminals from being at large in our communities. I hope we will give more thought to this in the future.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP

To measure age, if you've moved with the years to a higher level of ability and experience, you're young. If the years have left you behind, stuck fast in yesterday, you're old, according to Author Marjorie Barstow Greenbie.

For Mrs. Keyes.

The tea planned for today by Mrs. Claude Smith for her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Keyes, of Miami, has been postponed until Thursday. Mrs. Smith will entertain at her home on Oakdale road for her daughters and the guests will include a group of friends of the honor guest who is the former Miss Lucile Thomas, of Atlanta.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN.

Ellen and Jonathan K. were married at the little stone church across the street. We didn't go to the wedding but we saw "he pretty dresses from our front yard and watched the bride and groom away in a cloud of white tulle.

But we didn't see their little new house a few blocks away, because Ellen had no sooner come back from her honeymoon than we were passing just as she and a mutual friend were turning in at her walk. So we were introduced. Maybe we did hint once or twice, but anyway, we got a chance to go through a perfectly charming new house.

The living room has pale blue walls and a soft French blue carpet. The sofa is in a stunning wide-striped material with raspberry red cushions. An arm chair in pale yellow leather and a pair of fireside chairs in a flowered cretonne on an oyster white ground. A pair of fringed hassocks in raspberry red, lamps in off white, curtains in white shadow print organdy, accessories in crystal—and there you have the living room.

Harmoniously Different.
The dining room adjoining is different, and yet harmonious. Here the same soft blue carpet is used, but the walls are white with the same white organdy curtains as are used in the living room. The chair seats are pale yellow leather, and raspberry red accents are repeated in five fine pieces of lovely red porcelain on five picked pine brackets above the buffet and in the linings of two corner cupboards. Furniture in both rooms is basically 18th century mahogany with accent pieces of picked pine.

The master bedroom in the new little house has yellow walls, white dotted swiss curtains and spreads, walnut furniture, two small chairs in blue and white plaid slip covers.

The guest room has light gray walls and a light gray rug, furniture of modern design and in a light gray finish. Spreads and curtains are of a lovely rampagous floral on a white ground, while the easy chair here has a magenta covering.

Who wouldn't live happily ever after in a house like this!

Miss Johnson Weds Walter H. Ault.

Of interest to a host of friends in Atlanta is the marriage of Miss Frances Carl Johnson to Walter Henry Ault, of San Francisco, Cal. The marriage was solemnized on June 5 at Jonesboro.

The bride is a niece of the late Miss Lillian Viola Moseley, Atlanta dancing teacher, with whom she was formally associated.

Mr. Ault is a native of California. He was in business in Portland, Ore., prior to his coming to Atlanta. He was an officer in the World War, and was stationed at Camp Gordon. Mr. Ault has been in business in Atlanta for the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Ault were entertained at dinner Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Moore at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. He and his bride will reside in Atlanta.

Zeta Beta Chi.

Charles Stewart gave an informal lecture on Denmark and moving pictures were shown in conjunction with the talk.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, June 12.—Early summer in Hollywood invariably finds the fashionable film stars dining and dancing in cotton evening gowns.

Olympe (O-lamp) Bradna chooses a printed cotton gown of navy blue and white topped with a white pique jacket. Tailored on simple lines, the skirt has a sweeping fullness with a molded effect about the hips. The camisole bodice is gathered in front and held by a narrow band of white pique. Three narrow bands of the same material form the shoulder straps. The bolero jacket of white pique has short, puffed sleeves and is trimmed with three large wooden buttons covered with the same print as the dress.

You can always depend on Margaret Sullivan for something different in the way of accessories. With gay, plain-toned tweeds, Maureen uses for trimming hand-knitted sleeves, pockets and collars.

Margaret Sullivan has reverted to the sewing room for her 1938 jewelry. She was recently seen wearing a daytime pin in the form of half-opened acorns, copies of natural gold. Also a pin in the form of a straight-pin packet, the packet itself in natural gold thrust through with tiny straight pins of platinum with jeweled heads.

Orry-Kelly reintroduces the lost art of quilting with a sheer wool number for Olivia de Havilland. (You will see it in "Four's a Crowd.") The dress of rough beige crepe, has a full swing skirt, with hem banded six inches high in diamond quilting design. The scarf collar and belt of matching featherweight suede are also padded and quilted.

The vogue for incorporating two shades of color and a third hue for contrast gains momentum in Hollywood. Howard Shoup has designed a dress for Gloria Dickson of pale pink satin with molded bodice and swathed waistline. Over it goes a dramatic-looking cape of self-material lined in a deep blue pink crepe. Green, the third color, comes in the emerald jewelry, and bag with emerald clasp.

Adrian, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer designer, has a word of advice for the would-be chic woman. "Clothes unconsciousness is the first requisite for being a good model," states Adrian. "The ability to don a gown and forget about it does much to sell the garment. This is true, because, when a woman in nonchalant manner, a dress unconsciously becomes more possible to the onlooker."

For the fashionable farmerette, Gladys George's heavy silk shirt-maker dress is a good one to copy. Chosen for week ends in the country, it features a field of golden wheat as background for miniature reapers standing in sharp relief.

Isabel Jeans, who is a leader of fashion in her native England, tells me she expects dainties to replace slacks completely in a few more months. Also that the waistline will go still lower. She foresees short hair-cuts replacing the long bob. In addition to Miss Jeans, who wears her looks short, Mary Maguire has shown her long bob to a cut quite close to her head.

Hollywood Fashions on Parade: Gloria Blondell shopping in Beverly Hills in a navy gabardine dress with square sailor collars fore and aft. Rosella Thorneau lunching in Warner's Green Room in a navy crepe dress with clever white belt made in five strips with a musical staff of notes interspersed here and there and a G-clef for a buckle.

Rosa Ponselle at the party in her home dressed in colorful peasant dress—a blue blouse and very full sleeves, a rose and gray flowered pleated skirt, blue sandals, and dozens of golden bead strands around neck and wrists.

At the Polar Ice Palace, Norma Shearer in a long white fox wrap over a white fringe gown, Merle Oberon in a long ermine coat with sable epaulettes over a draped white jersey gown, Joan Bennett sporting a red velvet bow in her hair.

At the Philharmonic concert, Josephine Hutchinson in a green crepe gown with a sable cape; Della Lind in black silk-skirted gown with red fox cape.

Decatur Woman's Club To Entertain.
Members of the Decatur Woman's Club will honor the newly elected president at a Georgia products luncheon on June 17 at 12:30 o'clock in the clubhouse.

Mrs. I. H. Owen, chairman of the hostess committee, will be assisted by Mesdames David O'Neal, Anna H. Ford, William Keller, Ray Wilmer and the following hostesses for the June meeting of the club: Mesdames C. O. Duvall, J. L. R. Boyd, H. O. Hubert, W. D. Hunt, W. C. Kirby, J. E. McKinley, John Millidge, Fred Moore, J. M. Webb and W. M. Wilks.

Members of the club are urged to make reservations with any member of the committee by Thursday and to bring other members to take part in the election of the president.

Your Waistline, Sir!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

NEW IDEA IN REDUCING IS SLIGHTLY SUGGESTIVE OF BRIBERY.

When a man reduces, that's news! He usually is driven to it by his doctor, his wife or his job. In the case of Richard Himber, famous for romantic music in this age of swing, it was the job. He complains that "nobody loves a fat bandleader and you can't look romantic at 200 pounds."

As a result, Mr. Himber has almost completed the season's most novel reducing program. But let's start at the beginning and let him tell it! "I made up my mind to get my weight down if it was the last thing I did," he declared. "I have taken off thirty pounds and have only ten more to go."

"Did you find it hard to do?" I asked—as if I didn't know! "Well, it was no picnic. In fact," he began to warm up to the subject, "dieting is a terrible thing. And to think a man has to go through it! Look at that," said he, waving a lettuce and tomato sandwich at me, "that is supposed to be my lunch."

Mr. Himber is a bachelor and his scheme of dieting will appeal to all you overweight men who dine out and something about the entire responsibility for the diet over to his waiter. Whereas most men are inclined to tip for generous servings, he tips extra for half portions. It is up to the waiter to keep him on his diet. The waiter has to keep something about the calories and he must be strong-minded, because his job is to serve only half portions of the foods that put on weight. He has learned from experience that when he weakens, Mr. Himber eats all the food and gives him no tip.

Realistic diet leads to a bad disposition and sour notes. Mr. Himber has been very clever about his reducing. He does not go without the foods needed for strength. For breakfast he has two eggs, fruit juice and toast. At lunch he has a salad, a tomato and cucumber sandwich. At noon he has buttermilk with the sandwich.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I read your column regularly and find it, usually, fine and helpful. But you use an expression from time to time—in this morning's paper, for instance—that is misleading and utterly repulsive to people of refinement and people of right thinking. The expression is "office wife." Get your dictionary and read the definition of "wife." "Office wife" doesn't make sense and it suggests an unwholesome relation. No doubt many business men and many secretaries resent it thoroughly.

Why compare wives and business women anyway? Why not write separate columns for them. If you must discuss them at all? They have nothing in common, really, except that they are women. You continually playing them up as competitors is wrong. I mean, "office wife" is still many dignified secretaries who are proud to know and keep their proper place. There are still many true, pure-minded, high-minded business women left. Carry your comparisons these people into the limelight and emphasize right relationships, clean living, rather than make suggestions which pull down and smack of the flesh?

As a columnist you have a tremendous influence. Stop and think which way you are using it. And in the name of decency, clean pure-mindedness and right living, I beg you to keep out of your column, forever, the expression, "office wife."

A SUCCESSFUL WIFE.

ANSWER:
Grateful acknowledgment of the words of commendation, friend. As for the expression, "office wife," to which you take such sharp exception, of course you know it has passed into current usage. If figures of speech, as people, may be judged by the company they keep, office wife is a highly respectable term, since it appears frequently in best grade books, magazines and newspapers.

However, far be it from me to offend persons of delicate sensibilities and literal minds. Far be it from me to put ugly notions into the heads of happy husbands and exemplary secretaries. Now wouldn't it be good fun to hear from readers all over as to how they react to the expression, "office wife"? Shoot 'em in, readers, and we will abide by the decision of the majority. A good old American custom.

Yours for a clean column, fit for the "pure-minded and right-living." CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Mrs. Harrison Heads Z. T. A. Province.

Mrs. Perry L. Harrison, president of the Atlanta Alumnae Association, has been made president of the Zeta Tau Alpha, international fraternity. Zeta Tau Alpha is the sixth largest of the 23 national Panhellenic congress sororities, and has 76 active chapters and 70 chartered alumnae groups as well as many unchartered clubs. The sorority is divided into 12 provinces, and the province includes the states of Georgia, Florida and South Carolina.

The province convention was held June 10, 11, 12 at Jackson's beach. Mrs. W. C. Roberts, grand second vice president from New York, was in honor guest. Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Otis Horne, and Mrs. B. F. Cameron were Atlantans attending the convention.

Beauty According To You

(Posed by Virginia Grey)

This Blue Brillantine Is Perfect For White or Gray Hair

By LILLIAN MAE.

The latest creation of a woman whose life is devoted to the manufacture of items designed to beautify and keep beautiful her own sex, has just brought out a new brilliantine.

In convenient, delicate liquid form, it is tinted a soft, lovely blue—a tone perfect for gray or white hair, and amazingly effective in enriching the color and gloss of black or brown locks, while it lends lustrous lights to blond hair.

A touch of this new brilliantine not only adds a delightful sheen, but is the best aid I've found for helping to hold the very stylish upswep curls and waves in place, without making hair sticky or greasy.

Not heavily perfumed, but with a dash of a delightful scent, it gives to hair a charming, elusive fragrance that is lovely for even the warmest day.

It comes in an attractive square bottle which is easily used with an atomizer spray, my favorite method of applying brilliantine. During this week I am told the brilliantine may be purchased for 20 per cent less than the regular price, along with a similar reduction in all products from this company.

Better phone me before you forget it, for the name of this new brilliantine and the Atlanta shops at which it may be purchased. Remember, next week you'll have to pay more. If you do not live in the city write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

ACID STOMACH AND THAT GAS.

During digestion or in many instances when hunger, appetite or desire for food is stimulated by the sight, odor or even the thought of food of which one is particularly fond, the gastric juice is secreted. The acid in gastric juice is hydrochloric (muriatic) acid. If the secretion of acid is deficient, the digestion of food in the stomach is retarded and the progress of the meal through the intestine is delayed too. This subacidity or hypochlorhydria is usually present in anemia, chronic gastric "catarrh" or chronic gastritis, in persons with vitamin deficiency and in some cases of cancer of the stomach.

If the gastric juice is too acid, hyperacidity, hyperchlorhydria, "acid stomach," the digesting food is likely to be hurried through the stomach and on into the intestine before the normal digestion in the stomach is completed. Hyperacidity occurs with gastric or duodenal ulcer, gallstones, in excess of hyperacidity in some cases of "neurasthenia" or over-irritability or abnormally sensitive reaction to every-day emotional stimuli. (Space does not permit more detailed explanation—see "Nerves and Nutrition," No. 15 in Little Leaflet series.)

When the hydrochloric acid is diminished or absent, proteins are badly digested, and long retention of the food in the stomach leads to fermentation (of starches or sugars) with formation of lactic acid and other acids such as butyric as well as gases.

"Heartburn," or painful sensation felt in the region of the esophagus, behind the breastbone, is due to regurgitation of even normal gastric juice into the esophagus or gullet, or to regurgitation of hyperacid gastric contents. Pain caused by acid where acid is regurgitated from the stomach.

Erection of gas, belching, may occur in any case of hypochlorhydria or hyperacid stomach. In some of the most pronounced instances of belching, however, there is nothing the matter with the stomach, just an unconscious, perhaps nervous habit of swallowing air and expelling it with sound effects. "This is the explanation for many 'gas attacks' which are brought on by an emotional upset. It is a common fallacy that such a 'gas attack' or the presence of more than the normal amount of air or gas in the stomach can do anything to the alimentary tract or what seems an excessive amount, is dangerous. The danger is that it may 'press on the heart' and interfere with, if not stop, the heart. No such thing ever happens. The worst excessive air or gas in the stomach can do is to cause some slight discomfort from the 'bloating' feeling that accompanies it. If the patient is not unduly alarmed or worried about the 'pressing on the heart' the temporary discomfort is presently relieved in the natural way, that is, by the onward progress of the gas or air into the intestine. In any case there is no imperative need of something to "bring up" the gas or absorb it or get rid of it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Hernia Cured.
Following your suggestion last October I began taking ambulant treatment for hernia from Dr. and he informs me I can now discontinue wearing my truss. I want to thank you for saving me the necessity of going to a hospital for operation. (J. S.) I had 15 injections in all.

Answer:—One State Industrial Commission reports that the injection or ambulant treatment is now employed in 90 per cent of all industrial cases in that state. Bureaucrats in some states lay back their long ears and warn physicians that the industrial commission will not recognize or pay for ambulant treatment. You pay your taxes and takes what the bosses think fit for you.

Incompetent.
Troubled for 10 years with bleeding from rectum. Doctor I visited said he had no instrument for examination. (S. T. C.)
Answer:—Then he referred you to a doctor who is equipped to take care of such cases. Send a stamped addressed envelope and I'll name the nearest I know.

JUST NUTS

Bridge Lite

FORCING NOTRUMP.

The Culbertson two-notrump takeout is one of the most widely misinterpreted responses in contract bridge.

Designed primarily to provide a game-force when responder's hand contains strength but is unsuited for a double raise or 1-2 jump suit takeout, there has been a popular tendency to respond two notrump to partner's opening one suit bid with any balanced hand containing 2 1-2 honor tricks minimum.

Except when two notrump responder has passed originally, the bid shows a strong hand and is 100 per cent game-forcing.

The 1938 requirements as outlined by Ely Culbertson are:

2 1-2 to 3 1-2 honor-tricks. Balanced hand. No biddable suit. At least two and usually all unbid suits stopped.

BID OVERWORKED.
In actual play few hands are ever dealt which would satisfactorily fulfill all of these requirements and as a result many players, hoping to strain the hands to the breaking point in order to respond two notrump for fear partners will mistake their one notrump for a negative response or a weakness sign-off.

Modifications and exceptions must be made in practically every one of the above four requirements.

Two and one-half honor-tricks and a good biddable suit is not sufficient for a jump suit takeout and to force with 2-2 H. T., no biddable suit, no fit for partner's suit is still more hazardous.

MINIMUM FORCES.
Two notrump responses should never be undertaken holding a bare 2 1-2 honor tricks lacking a fit. . . usually three to an honor or two honor cards. . . in partner's suit.
When opener bids one heart, a two notrump is justifiable, holding:
(1) S—10 6 4 2; H—Q 10 3; D—A Q 4; C—K J 9.
(2) S—Q 6 4 2; H—K J x; D—A 7 3; C—Q 10 3.
With a stronger hands the fit for partner's suit may be relaxed somewhat, as:
(3) S—A Q 6; H—J 5; D—K 10 6 3; C—Q 9 5 4.
(4) S—K J 4; H—A J; D—Q 10 5 3; C—Q 8 5 3.
(5) S—A 10 5; H—9 6 3; D—A 7 6 3; C—K 10 9.
(6) S—A K 4; H—7 2; D—A 5 4 3; C—J 9 4 2.

A CHARMING DRESS FOR SUMMER AFTERNOONS.

There's a refreshing lightness and simplicity about this graceful dress that will make you look just the way you want to look in midsummer—cool, dainty and smart. Shirring on the shoulders makes the blouse soft and pretty. The very short sleeves are nice and full, and are gathered into bands in a smart and new way. The plain neckline is cut to a comfortable, cool V. The front panel, widening toward the hem, gives such a pretty swing to the skirt.

Make up this design in pure dye silk, voile or chiffon, and wear a cluster of flowers at the neckline to match your broad-brimmed hat. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1540-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding belt measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 3/8 yards of 39-inch material. The pattern includes a detailed sew chart.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.
Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Fashion Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns.

Miss Holcombe Weds George Carter At Garden Ceremony on Club Drive

Miss Lois Elizabeth Holcombe became the bride of George Andrew Carter at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a ceremony taking place in the garden at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Carter, on Club drive.

Rev. J. H. Fuller, of Marietta, officiated and Miss Helena Douglas sang several appropriate selections accompanied by Miss Ethel Douglas, pianist.

The young couple were married before an improvised altar of palms and ferns placed against a background of rose gardens and spruce trees.

Miss Dorothy Harris was the bride's maid of honor. She wore a becoming model of peach gorgette and her straw hat and accessories were white. Her shoulder was Talisman roses and valley lilies. Eva Allen Clark, of Jacksonville, Ill., was flower girl.

The bride entered with her father, Morton Edgar Altman, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his twin brother, Joseph Clark Carter, who was his best man.

The bride wore a street-length dress of navy blue marquisette trimmed in lace daisies and wore a white Bakin hat and white accessories. She carried a white lace handkerchief, which was carried by the groom's mother at her wedding, and her shoulder bouquet was of white roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Altman, mother of the bride, wore a royal blue flowered chiffon and her flowers were sweet peas.

Mrs. Carter, mother of the groom, was dressed in green chiffon.

Former Chicago Belle Will Form Lovely Addition to Younger Set

By Sally Forth

MR. AND MRS. G. E. MAY and their daughter, Shirley May, have come down from Chicago to reside in Atlanta at the Georgian Terrace hotel. Shirley is quite an attractive young girl who finished her high school course at St. Scholastica's and went to DePaul University during the past year.

Shirley is a lovely golden-haired blonde and is an expert swimmer. She has spent all of her life in Chicago and learned to swim in Lake Michigan. She sings, too, and leans toward the popular songs. Mrs. May and Shirley look more like sisters than mother and daughter, and are very congenial. Of course dancing is a favorite pastime of Shirley, who is particularly fond of ballroom dancing.

Mr. May recently was transferred here with a well-known oil concern and the trio will be charming acquisitions to the married and unmarried contingent of society.

MRS. WALKER PENDLETON proved her ingenuity recently when the elements interfered with her planned garden supper party for Elinor Wilkinson and her fiancé, Owen Walker. Mrs. Pendleton has a most attractive small garden at her home in Druid Hills and she had planned a party in the midst of the beautiful blooming hemocallis-daisies and roses, against a background of mimosa trees. But the rains descended and plans had to be hastily changed.

Then Mrs. Pendleton proved her ingenuity, for so beautifully was the dining table decorated that it looked as if it had been planned that way for weeks! Gleaming silver and pure white linen adorned the table, lighted only with burning tapers. A center piece was arranged of snow white sweetpeas, baby breath and calla lilies, looking for all the world like a bride's bouquet.

Seated around the table, with their dates, were the four boys who had graduated from high school together and kept up their close friendship: Owen with his bride-to-be, Elinor; Edmund Phillips with Florrie Sisson, Talmage Goby with Blanche Knapp, and Walker Pendleton Jr., with Mary Ann Nolan.

THE NEXT FEW weeks will be most interesting for Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Kethley, of Decatur, and their daughters, Mary and Dorothy, for the time will be taken up with two commencement exercises, in which the daughters will be given degrees, and a trip to Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va., for the family foursome.

Mr. and Mrs. Kethley will go to the University of the South for the graduation from the Georgia State College for Women. Later the trio leaves for Augusta, where Dorothy will receive a medical degree from the University of Georgia School of Medicine. Dorothy was graduated from Agnes Scott College several years ago and received her master's degree from Emory University two years ago. She is a member of the Mortar Board of Agnes Scott College, national honor society, and Phi Sigma fraternity of biology at Emory.

Dorothy's senior year internship at the University hospital in Augusta, this must wait until the conclusion of her grand vacation trip with her parents and sister.

Crackers Win Twin Bill From Pels; Harris Hurls 4-Hitter

Ranger, Drake, Lashed Together, Fight With Guns Almost Touching

BELFAST, Ireland.—(By Mail.)—There is an American story in Belfast. Or near it. Indeed, it is difficult to avoid Irish stories in Ireland. You may see the ancestral home of President McKinley. He was one of seven men of Ulster descent who have occupied the White House in Washington.

This, though, is an American story to be found at Carrickfergus, which is in County Antrim. Fergus was a great King in the old days, the A. D. days. He founded two kingdoms, one in Ireland and one in Scotland. Coming home to Ireland he was wrecked on a rock and he and his crew drowned. The town was called after him in the Gaelic, Carrickfergus, which means Fergus' rock.

One windy day in April of 1778 a strange ship appeared off the coast. In the harbor the English man of war, Drake, rode at anchor. The ship moved in and signaled for a pilot. A boat went out and the boat never came back. The men remained on board—prisoners.

John Paul Jones had appeared. The Ranger had gobbled up the crew and the pilot. The wind changed and so did the tide and so the strange ship, The Ranger, moved on down the coast a bit to Whitehaven. There were guns there and a town. The guns were spiked and the crew of the Ranger came back, not having lost a man.

Across the way was St. Mary's Isle. The ship went there. There was a certain Lord Selkirk whom John Paul Jones wanted for the purpose of exchanging prisoners. He was not at home. The crew took the silver plate. Later John Paul Jones bought it in at auction and returned it. He was born near there, was John Paul Jones, and he wanted to be neighborly, in a manner of speaking.

FOUR DAYS LATER.

Four days later The Ranger appeared again at Carrickfergus. The Drake still rode at anchor. It was "up anchor," though, when The Ranger appeared. There had been wild stories up and down the coast of guns spiked and towns burned and ships captured and sent off to French ports. John Paul Jones was welcome in France.

They both had about the same complement of guns. The Drake, as a matter of fact, had two more than The Ranger. But the facts seem to be that her crew was less experienced. The Drake might have won but John Paul Jones handled his ship better.

You may heed this a moment. The Ranger swung in close and grappled the Drake. The ships were lashed together by the American crew. The muzzles of the guns were only a few inches from the sides of the ships. And there they fought. You may heed that because in no naval battle before or since has there been such a fight. There was more destruction at Jutland when the German fleet ventured forth that one time. But no battle such as this one with the ships lashed together and the muzzles of the guns almost touching.

The Ranger won—every American boy knows that. The Drake was so badly damaged she had to be abandoned. But Paul Jones sailed on to more victories and more glories. He was to serve France and Russia and was to die, alone and all but friendless, in Paris. It was a strange end to this rather violent man whom the English called "Pirate." He slept in France for many, many years before an American ambassador brought back all that was mortal of him to sleep at Annapolis.

THE INEVITABLE IRISHMAN.

It would be difficult to find a battle in all the history of the world in which there was no Irishman.

He is ubiquitous and inevitable, the Irishman, of whom it is said that all his songs are sad and all his battles glad.

There was an Irishman in the crew of Christopher Columbus when he touched land near Cuba. There was an Irishman in the crew of John Paul Jones when he fought at Carrickfergus and, oddly enough, the Irishman was a native of Carrickfergus. I went with Harry S. Kennedy, a very fine Irish newspaperman of the Independent, of Dublin, to the library and we found the newspaper published in Belfast the week of that battle.

"You see what we thought of your navy don't you," he said, laughing, and pointed to the story. It was not on the first page but on the second, and at the bottom of the page at that. The news of the Belfast markets was on page one. In those days no one thought much of an upstart lot of colonies with no navy at all but just a Pirate named John Paul Jones commanding a privateer.

Anyhow, that is the American story of this section of Ireland. The town of Carrickfergus hasn't changed so much. The old castle is in ruins. I stood there at the old castle and lifted my hat to John Paul Jones. I wish more of the Scotch and Irish and Welsh would come over to America.

BUDGE AND MAKO UPSET IN FINALS

Americans, Heavy Favorites, Play Raggedly; 12,000 See Match.

AUTEUIL, France, June 12.—(AP) Bernard Destremieu and Yvon Petra, of France, scored a stunning upset today by defeating Don Budge and Gene Mako for the French hard-court doubles championship, 3-6, 6-3, 9-7, 6-1.

The young Frenchmen, playing together this year for the first time as a doubles team, showed an alert, smashing game to defeat what is generally conceded to be the world's No. 1 doubles pair. Budge and Mako, the all-conquering Americans, walked on the court heavy favorites but they played raggedly.

A crowd of 12,000, expecting an easy victory for the Americans, went wild when a victory appeared certain for the young French pair. Budge and Mako, who had won the match was played before a roaring, excited throng.

Mako played a particularly ragged game and the Frenchmen concentrated on him. Budge, however, dropped his own service four times at love.

The first set was marked by the French team's stage fright. When Destremieu dropped service in the eighth game it gave the Americans a 5-3 lead which Budge made 6-3 on his service.

The lanky, powerful Petra won his service to open the second set. Budge dropped his at love, the turning point of the match, for from then on the Americans never recovered definite command. Time and again the Frenchmen passed them with smashing drives, lobbed them into smashboy errors.

In the last set Budge and Mako let the Frenchmen win almost as they pleased and showed little disposition even to move around the court to stage off the rout.

Bill Walthour's Entry Tops All Model Planes

Harold Ewing's Ship Wins in Senior Class Before 1,500 at Northside Airport.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Tiny motors, sent airplanes roaring into the air yesterday afternoon in the Atlanta Aero Engineers' gasoline-powered model meet at the Northside Airport.

Bill Walthour's entry remaining aloft one minute and 17 seconds won the open class, which consisted of entrants over 21 years of age.

In the senior class, consisting of flyers between 16 and 21, Harold Ewing's ship romped through the field with an excellent performance of 1 minute 17.2 seconds. He finished ahead of Alton Cowles, president of the Atlanta Aero Engineers, whose plane turned in the time of 35.2 seconds.

Barry Neil's craft trailed closely with the time of 33.5 seconds. Nick Savant's entry won the junior class, consisting of boys under 16 years, with the time of 49 seconds. Weyman Gibson was second with 41.5 and Jack Cantrell, third, with 39.4.

A large crowd of some 1,500 spectators lined the field and cheered the tiny planes as model enthusiasts hoped and prayed for no crack-ups.

All shapes, sizes and colors were represented in the 14 entries. Crack-ups, motor failures caused near heart failure to owners, provided thrills to spectators.

Planes were allowed a 30-second motor run, anything over that time disqualifying the entrant. Special time-stops were attached to the planes to stop the motors, but on a couple of occasions they and the ships soared on and on.

GOES THREE MILES. In one incident, the plane remained in the air fully 10 minutes and traveled about three miles from the field.

Twelve prizes donated by the Atlanta club and merchants were awarded winners after the meet, which was called "one of the most successful" by officials.

Officers of the club are: Alton Cowles, president; Connie Caviness, vice president; Nick Savant, secretary and treasurer; Gene Norland, business manager, and J. K. Coppage, general advisor and N. A. director for the Atlanta district.

Nick Savant's winner in the junior class was of his own design and defeated planes designed by national concerns, although assembled by contestants.

BLACK CRACKERS GET EVEN BREAK

Atlanta Black Crackers and Indianapolis A. B. C.'s, leaders of the Negro American league, divided a pair of thrilling games before a large crowd at Ponce de Leon park Sunday afternoon. Indianapolis won the first game, 7-2 and Atlanta the nightcap, 7-1.

Indianapolis holds a 2-1 lead in the series. If the Black Crackers succeed in winning Tuesday night's game, which concludes the series, they will gain an even break with the accomplished visitors.

Manager Nish Williams was highly impressed with the play of his charges yesterday and rates his team on a par with any in the league.

Children will be admitted free to the night game Tuesday when accompanied by one parent or more.

A large number of white fans attended and enjoyed yesterday's twin bill.

BILTMORE MEET TO START TODAY

Dr. Kels Boland, Top Seeded, Will Play Claude Williams.

Dr. Kels Boland, top seeded, plays Claude Williams today at 2 o'clock in opening match of the first annual Biltmore championship tournament.

No admission will be charged for the first two rounds and the public is invited to attend the matches on the courts on Fourth street, between Peachtree and Juniper.

After Boland in the seedings are Bill Moore, Preston Chambers, Marion Reese, Malcolm Manley, Red Enloe, Hank Crawford and Glenn Dudley.

TODAY'S MATCHES. 2:00 P. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 12.—(AP)—Lanky George Tole, Miami University player, took the men's title in the cotton states tennis tournament here today by defeating Burtz Boulware, Atlanta, 6-2, 6-0, 6-4.

Driving the base lines and forcing at the net, Toley, seeded No. 2 in the tourney, disposed of the Atlanta star with surprising ease. Boulware lacked the fire and accuracy of his play yesterday that eliminated Bill Hardie, Miami University.

Boulware teamed with Joe Abrams, New Orleans, however, to win the doubles crown from George Pero, Miami, and Hardie, by scores of 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4.

In junior play, flashy Earl Bartlett, of New Orleans, ranked No. 3 nationally, turned back Walter Larson, Mobile, 6-4, 6-4, to capture the title.

An all-star final featured women's play. Jesse Grossnickel defeated her younger sister, Frances, by 7-5, 6-1, for the championship. Both are from Columbus, Mississippi.

Lindale Nine Beats Shannon Team, 4-2. ROME, Ga., June 12.—With "Slick" Moulton hurling a six-hitter, Lindale defeated Shannon today, 4-2, scoring all runs in the final three innings. Shannon now leads the loop over Lindale by one game.

Tubize whipped Aragon 11-0. Dean hurling a six-hitter. Cedarhurst upset Alco 6-3, and Rockmart beat Anchor Duck 5-1.

Hundreds Pay a Final Tribute to Frank Speer

From every walk of life came a sorrowing throng Sunday to pay last tribute to Frank Speer, a brave and grand boy whose tragic death shocked the entire sports world.

At Bethany Methodist church where Frank served as a steward, hundreds were unable to gain admittance. It was a powerful demonstration of the esteem Atlantans and southerners held for the 32-year-old athlete whom Rev. Sisson spoke of as being nationally and internationally famous.

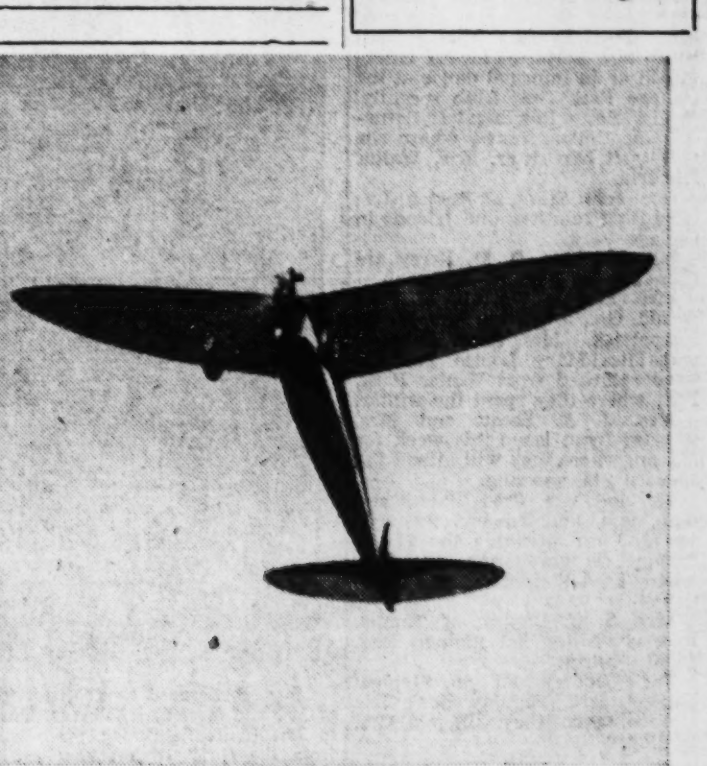

Among the magnificent floral display was a wreath from Georgia Tech, the school which Frank loved and for which he played so well. There was the "T," beautiful in gold, and the big white "C." One could not help wishing Frank might have seen that. He loved the gold and white so well.

From Bronko Nagurski, Tony Stecher, Toots Mondt, Paul Bowser and other leaders in the sports world came flowers and messages of sympathy. Henry Piers, the matman from Holland who opposed Frank in a wrestling match here only a fortnight ago, served as honorary escort for the boy he respected and admired. Tears filled the eyes of Henry and of Tiny Ruff, who has refereed so many of Speer's matches.

And so another fine trooper passes through the Great Gate. He died in his youth, but his life was full of accomplishment and activity and he did not live in vain. He left the world better than he found it. I don't know for what task God chose to use him so soon, but I know He picked the right man.

Harris, Peters Shine In Cracker Victories

Luman Allows Pelicans Four Hits in First, 7-0; Nightcap Won on Error by 4-3.

By WILLIAM MCG. KEEFE.

PELICAN STADIUM, NEW ORLEANS, La., June 12.—Atlanta took both ends of a double-header from the Pelicans Sunday afternoon at Pelican stadium, pounding Earl Overman in the first game to win, 7 to 0, and getting to "Red" Evans for one big inning in the second tilt to outluck the Pelicans, 4 to 3. The "luck" part of the Cracker victory in the second fray came in the seventh inning when Atlanta scored three runs on a single by Luman.

Luman Harris, young right-hander, simply overpowered the Pels in the first game, which was interrupted nearly an hour by a rain squall which came just after five innings were completed. The lull made no difference to Harris, who came out for the sixth and went right on with his job of whitewashing. He held the Pels to four scattered hits, one of which was a scratchy one. Jim Shilling got that one and also a clean one.

Overman was driven from the mound in the third inning when the Crackers scored two runs. They had tallied one in the second on singles by Rose, Lipscomb and Bolling, and in the third they tore into Overman. Peters, Hill and Lipscomb cracking out two-baggers and Mallico mixing in a single.

BAD INNING. Floyd Stranheim, who succeeded Overman, ran into a bad inning in the fifth when a base on balls, a hit batsman, several Pelican misplays and a single by Rose and a two-bagger by Hill accounted for three runs.

The second game was a see-saw affair. The Crackers jumped off in front when a two-bagger by Peters, hitting star of the game, and a single by Mallico scored a run in the first inning. Michael made an unassisted double play on a liner by Rose or the visitors might have made more runs.

Leo Moon, who was opposing Evans, held the Birds well in hand until their fourth, when singles by Scalzi, Carson and Shilling and an error by Lipscomb gave the Pels two runs. A great throw by Mallico to get Carson at the plate on Shilling's single saved Moon lots of trouble.

Atlanta took the lead again in the first half of the fifth, a triple by Peters and singles by Mallico, Rose and Hill accounting for two runs. This time Kit Carson got Rose at the plate on a great throw to save Evans some grief.

BECKMAN FOR MOON. Fighting back hard, the Pels got to Moon in their fifth and when singles by Russell, Scalzi and Carson brought in a run, Bill Beckman took the hill with three on and two out. He retired Shilling on a fly to left.

The score remained tied through the sixth, but Peters, who had started all the trouble for Evans in the fifth, opened Atlanta's seventh with a single to left and he went to second when Sulik fumbled the ball. Mallico bunting, beat it out for a hit and Mallico forced Mallico at second while Peters was held on third, but Rose drove a fly to center and Peters scored on the catch.

The Pels were helpless before Beckman in their seventh, going out in order.

Joe Dobson will oppose the Crackers tomorrow night with Bobby Durham, who has been rank poison to the Pels many years, due to pitch for Atlanta.

Browns Trade Knott To Chicago White Sox

ST. LOUIS, June 12.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns announced last night veteran Jack Knott, pitcher, had been traded to the Chicago White Sox for Bill Cox, youthful right-hander.

The deal, which gave the Browns a pitcher seven years younger than the 31-year-old hurled they traded, was a straight player trade.

Knott has appeared in seven games this season for a record of one victory and two defeats. Cox has appeared in seven games and has been charged with two defeats.

COURTS REVERSED 109 TIMES AGAINST 32 AFFIRMATIONS

'Reactionary' Third Circuit Bench's Score Is 16 Con- secutive 'Blanks.'

(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.)
WASHINGTON, June 12.—The third circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia, long under administration fire as "the most reactionary court in the country," was reversed by the supreme court 16 times during the session just ended and was not sustained in a single case, a survey disclosed tonight. Running a close second was the ninth circuit court embracing California, Oregon and most of the other far western states. This court was reversed 14 times and sustained only three. Next came the seventh district—Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin—with 11 reversals and three affirmations.

The Department of Justice compiled the figures in preparing annual reports for congress. Only one circuit court—the second at New York—was sustained more times than it was reversed. It suffered only 11 reversals as against 12 affirmations.

INFANTRY GROUP ELECTS OFFICERS

Captain E. C. Butts Named President.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 12.—(AP) Captain E. C. Butts, of Brunswick, was elected president of the First Georgia Infantry Association at the meeting held here today, succeeding Colonel Alex R. Lawton Jr., of Savannah.

Other officers elected at the meeting are Major W. L. Harwell, vice president; Lieutenant W. J. Newman, local secretary; Corporal Robert Tait, historian, and Sergeant Charles Barnhill, chaplain. All the new officers are from Brunswick.

The association will meet in Brunswick in 1939.

Circuit courts and the U. S. court of appeals for the District of Columbia totaled 109 against only 32 affirmations.

Among the major cases in which the Philadelphia court was rebuffed were several relating to the National Labor Relations Board.

The Justice Department's complete record follows:

Only the first three circuit courts have designated meeting places.

WOMAN ORDINARY
DIES IN LOUISVILLE

Miss Louisa Wright Stricken at Office.

LOUISVILLE, Ga., June 12.—(AP)—Miss Louisa Wright, judge of the court of ordinary of Jefferson county the past 12 years and a member of a prominent Georgia family, died at her home here today.

She was stricken ill at her office late Saturday. She was one of the few women ordinaries in the state.

She was the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Wright, a pioneer family of Jefferson county. A sister, Miss Emily Wright, of Louisville, survives.

Funeral services will be Monday.

BRITAIN GETS JITTERY AS 'SUB' SECRETS LOST

PORTLAND, England, June 12.—(AP)—Temporary disappearance of a highly secret document from the archives of the world's premier anti-submarine school on H. M. S. Osprey here gave authorities the jitters and resulted in a secret court of inquiry last night, it was learned today.

Findings of the court were not learned, but were the nature of the document.

The Osprey archives are known to contain papers relating to one of Great Britain's most prized instruments—a silent detector ray for hunting submarines.
